William II, Aged 70
Happy "Big Steel"
"How Far Yon Candle"
A City on a Rock

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

IN SOME days William Hohenzollern, once emperor, will be 70. He is well but disillusioned, wears a full beard, mustaches no longer need be turned up at the point.

* * *

He will celebrate by publishing a book called "My Ancestors." It will be interesting, going back to the early money-lending family of the Prussia that got its name from its interest rates. But it's hard to write impartially about your own family.

* * *

William decided that some things were wrong in the Hohenzollern family and blames its troubles, passion, rather rages, bad temper, etc., on a great-great Maria Pavlowa, Russian by birth. Hohenzollern by accident of marriage. That reminds you of Shakespeare's Eve.

* * *

William says Maria was "the ruin of my family." His predecessor, Frederick the Great, would know better. Maria Pavlowa, because she was real, violent, ungovernable, may have given Prussia's ruling family its genius.

* * *

OLYMPIA, dancing naked, with snakes wrapped around her body, too intimate by far with an Egyptian magician conspiring to murder Philip's second wife and her baby, was nevertheless mother of Alexander the Great.

* * *

It takes energy to produce energy. Sometimes ladies that seem wild simply lack an adequate outlet for superior powers.

* * *

It's too bad we know so little about violent women of the past—Dido, and Bertha of the big feet, Charlemagne's mother, the marvelous Hypatia, and Tomyris, the African queen that cut off the head of Cyrus and dipped it in a goat skin filled with human blood.

Men have written too much about themselves, not enough about women.

* * *

OGDEN L. MILLS, assistant secretary of the treasury, says the big steel company, which got an income tax refund of $15,000,000 in one year, paid in that same year $173,000,000 in taxes.

That interests "big Steel" stock holders. It indicates that their property is well managed, profitable.

* * *

The New York Central railroad, in its 37 story office building, installs a Seattle searchlight that will so shine "in a naughty world" as to rival Shakespeare's little candle.

It will light up many inhabitants of "Easy street" as it streams up and down Park av. and over into Fifth av.

* * *

"Big Steel" went up twenty-one dollars a share last week, increasing the wealth of those that own it by $14,500,000. And that was only one little item in the week's prosperity. If you have anything good, in the United States, hold onto it. If not, as the late Collis P. Huntington would say, get something.

* * *

SOME elderly New Yorkers worry about big buildings, convinced that they must sooner or later cause Manhattan island to sink.

It will comfort them to know that under New York there is solid rock more than 60 miles. All the tall buildings make about as much difference as a few pebbles on the Rock of Gibraltar.

* * *

Our rock dwelling is substantial. Professor Michelson of Chicago University has proved that its rigidity, which means its resistance to any power that might pull it out of shape, is as great as though it were made of solid steel.

* * *

Michelson established earth's rigidity by measuring the rise and fall of the tide in a pipe one inch in diameter and more than a mile long. Not everybody realizes that the tide rises and falls in your teacup or in a country bird's drinking vessel, just as it does in the ocean, only the tide is not so high or low.

* * *

STATISTICS show that 1,223,000 homes in this country have electric refrigerators. That is only 6.4 per cent of the houses that are electrically wired and could have them. All will have them eventually.

* * *

Use of electric machinery in the home—washing machines, ironers, mangles, exercising apparatus—has increased enormously in the past year.

L. J. Horowitz, head of Thompson-Starrett, biggest building concern, announces privately a new electric cooking stove that will be operated as cheaply as a gas stove. That will be General Electric and Westinghouse.

* * *

MR. STEWART, head of Standard Oil of Indiana, is making a hard fight against the Rockefeller effort to get rid of him.

Odds are against Mr. Stewart for next year. If he wins, as many in Wall Street predict that he will, his company will be "out of touch" with the other Standard Oil units.

* * *

That may be a disadvantage, and then shudders will think it over. Or when little octopuses fall out the with three to one against it may suffer. Mr. Giannini, California financier, whose Bancitaly Co. holds proxies of thousands of Standard Oil shares, votes with the Rockefellers.

WOMAN SHOT BY MISTAKE IS AWARDED $200

Miss Elsie Jones Given Judgment in Suit Against Brother-in-Law

ASKED FOR $10,000

Wounded by Shot Intended for Supposed Burglar at Bert Radebaugh Home

A verdict for $200 was returned by a jury in common pleas court Saturday afternoon for Miss Elsie Jones, victim of a shooting accident, who brought a suit for $10,000 damages against Bert Radebaugh, of Greenwood st., her brother-in-law.

Miss Jones was accidentally shot in the abdomen with a shotgun when she was mistaken for a burglar by Radebaugh. The shooting occurred Feb. 22, 1925.

According to testimony in the case Miss Jones left the Radebaugh house, where she had been making her home, early in the evening of Feb. 22. Mrs. Radebaugh, her sister, heard her return about 10:30 o'clock, she testified, and supposed that the girl had gone to bed. Several hours later Mrs. Radebaugh testified, she was awakened by some one walking through the lower floor of the house.

Awakened by Wife

Mrs. Radebaugh awakened her husband, telling him to get his shotgun, that some one was in the house. Radebaugh testified that he obtained the gun and fired from the head of the stairs when he saw the supposed prowler enter the stairway from the kitchen door. The darkness, he claimed, prevented him from recognizing Miss Jones.

The force of the charge from the shotgun was partly broken by a coat which Miss Jones was carrying over her arm. In her suit for damages Miss Jones claimed that Radebaugh had been negligent in handling the gun.

Returns to Mother's Home

Testimony in the trial revealed that Mrs. Radebaugh had been estranged from her parents and that after the shooting accident Miss Jones returned to the home of their mother.

Miss Jones was represented by Frank Wiedemann and John Wiedemann, of the law firm of Wiedemann, Patton & Wiedemann. Radebaugh was represented by Attorneys Hoke Donithen and Alfred Donithen.

The case was first heard in common pleas court about a year ago. The jury disagreed at that time.

VESSEL IS AGROUND, PASSENGERS SAVED

President Garfield May Be Pulled Off Reef Tuesday

NEW YORK, Jan. 21— Carrying all of the 83 passengers of the Dollar liner President Garfield, which went aground in a fog early yesterday on Matanila Shoal off the Florida coast, the Munson liner Pan-America was steaming toward Nassau, Bahamas, early today.

Meanwhile a wrecking tug was attempting to pull the 10,000-ton President Garfield off the reef, the 120 persons in the President Garfield's crew remained aboard the grounded liner.

Capt. George Rose, of the Pan-America, reported by wireless to International News Service that the passengers, who left New York on Thursday bound on a round-the-world cruise, were transferred safely to the Pan-America at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

That the fog had lifted and that favorable conditions now prevail was indicated by Capt. T. P. Quinn, commander of the Dollar liner.

Matanila Snoal is approximately 75 miles east of Fort Pierce, Fla., and at the northern extremity of the Bahamas. The Pan-America received signals from the Garfield's S. O. S. at 7:15 a. m. yesterday, reached the scene under forced draft shortly after 4:30 p. m. and had transferred the passengers in another hour.

Although the task of freeing the President Garfield from the reef may not be completed until tomorrow or Wednesday, according to Dollar line officials, the ship will not be in danger unless a storm comes up. The vessel is not leaking, they said.

The officials said that the Garfield's passengers, who were due to arrive at Nassau this morning, would remain there at the line's expense until arrangements are made for the continuance of their trip around the world, or return to New York immediately aboard the Pan-America.

Whether the President Garfield will be forced to go into drydock for repairs after being hauled off the reef has not been ascertained.

PUBLISHER DEAD

Col. James Elverson Dies at Home in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21—Col. James Elverson Jr., 50-year-old president and publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, was found dead in his apartment here at 7:30 a. m. today.

Death was due to heart disease, according to Dr. Herbert Carpenter, Elverson's personal physician.

Colonel Elverson was a well-known figure in the city's civic, business and social life. He succeeded his late father as president of the newspaper and became a member of the former governor's staff thus acquiring the title of colonel.

CHICAGO COPS MAKE GREAT CRIME ROUNDUP

Sweep City's Criminal Element into Jail for 36 Hours

EXODUS OF CROOKS

Racketeers and Hoodlums That Escaped Arrest Flee Windy City

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—What is called by Police Commissioner William E. Russell "the greatest round-up of under world characters in the history of Chicago" ended here today when the county jail door clanked shut on the 3,394th prisoner.

All of this vast number had been arrested within a period of 36 hours, beginning at midnight Saturday. The county jail is jammed from the cellar to the roof.

"The police department has finally struck," said Commissioner Russell. "My men are determined to drive the man with the gun' from Chicago.

"Every detective in the city has been working for 24 hours without sleep. What they have accomplished in that time shows that they mean business.

"The result shows also that this department needs 3,000 more men to

CHICAGO WITHOUT MURDER, HOLDUP

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—Chicago bung up a new record today.

Following one of the most sensational drives against crimes in America's criminal annals, in which more than 3,300 alleged gangsters, hoodlums, gunmen, racketeers, bandits and thieves were arrested, a checkup revealed that no holdups or robberies of any kind occurred in all Chicago during a seven-hour period.

From midnight last night until 7 o'clock this morning Chicago was without a "bandit play" such as usually occurs almost hourly.

ZEP ROMANCE!

When Col. Allan Miller, ex-war flier and now millionaire manufacturer, took a jaunt to Europe aboard the Graf Zeppelin, Miss Lassie Honeyman (above), New York society girl, sent him a radiogram of congratulation which reached him while he was high over the Atlantic. Miller replied from Berlin. Now they're engaged to be married.

KILLER STOIC AS HE GOES TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

Death Ends Spectacular Crime Career of Arch Bandit

DIES WITHOUT SPEAKING

Refuses Spiritual Consolation on Grounds He Had Become Atheist

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN
Marion Star Staff Writer

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, BELLEFONTE, Pa., Jan. 21 — A ghost-like figure with a dazed expression on his blanched face, shuffled into the dimly-lit death chamber here today and was quickly shunted into the electric chair. Before he could utter a word, a grotesque brown leather mask was drawn over his head and 2,000 volts of electricity shot through his body. Before the sinister white and the crackling, sputtering sound that accompanied it had died away, he was dead. Thus ended the spectacular career of Paul Jaworski, the killer, arch bandit, stick-up man and sworn enemy of society.

Twenty-four stunned eye witnesses looked on transfixed, in the tomb like silence of the place as guards hurriedly brought in another prisoner, Calvin E. James, a youthful bootlegger-slayer. In the flash of an eye, he, too, "rode the thunderbolt," as they say in prison parlance.

Die Without Speaking

Jaworski, killer of half a dozen men during his wild rampage of crime across Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio and Illinois, paid the supreme penalty specifically for the death of Isaiah Gump, a payroll guard slain in a $48,000 holdup at Mollenauer, Pa. James was electrocuted for the slaying of William Dunston, a drug clerk, of Doylestown, Pa., over a $150 liquor debt.

Both prisoners, Jaworski and James, died without uttering a syllable. Both men were pronounced dead four minutes after they had sat in that weird-looking contraption known as the death chair.

Dawn had just broken over the peaks of Nittany mountain, which overlooks the prison, when the official witnesses grouped silently in the electrocution building were told that "everything is ready—come up stairs, men."

Trudge Into Room

It was a minute before seven. Only those, who were, to view this grim spectacle trudged up a winding stairway and into the death chamber. It was dimly lighted except for one

REPORT RIVERS OF COUNTY RECEDING

Roads Again Passable After Overflow; Rain Forecast for Tuesday

A breath of spring touched Marion this morning, a striking contrast with the below zero conditions that existed one week ago today.

A warm sun which broke through the haze of clouds about 9:30 o'clock this morning aided the mercury to climb until it had nearly reached the 45-degree mark by noon. Everywhere it was the same old query—"Isn't this a beautiful day?"

Although not quite as warm Sunday, church-goers were greeted with sunlight. The mercury rose to 30 degrees at the warmest point Sunday but skidded back to 20 degrees last night.

One year ago yesterday the temperature went only as high as 20 degrees and dropped to eight above for the coldest.

The excellent mid-winter weather is not for long, according to the weather prediction, which calls for rain Tuesday with the temperature remaining about the same.

Rivers in the county which were out of their banks Saturday morning, due to the heavy rains, had all receded today, according to reports from the county. All roads are again passable and two or three culverts, which had been washed out, were repaired over Sunday.

TO "REMAKE" BABY

Child Born Without Legs, One Arm, To Walk

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—A baby girl, born legless and with only one arm, will be entirely "remade" by modern science, Dr. Henry Bascom Thomas, professor of orthopedic surgery at the University of Illinois college of medicine, announced today.

Two artificial legs and an artificial arm, equipped with wires attached to little loops of permanent skin will permit the child to control muscles and actually walk, eat, write and perform other acts of a normal child, Dr. Thomas claimed.

Four High School Youths, Trapped on Lake Island, Rescued by Boys in Boat

Quiet Sunday Afternoon Broken as Students Cross "Ice-Bridge; Shifting Cakes Block Efforts To Regain Mainland; Marooned Three Hours

TOLEDO, Jan. 21—A dramatic rescue, such as sea-story novelists gush about, but seldom, if ever, see, was enacted on Lake Erie here yesterday afternoon, and today it was being written down in the annals of adventurous youth.

Four high school lads, in the quest of excitement to while away a monotonous Sunday afternoon, wandered down to Lake Erie at the point where the Maumee river "rolls onward to the sea."

Huge ice-blocks floated lazily on the surface of the waters. Conceiving the idea of reaching off-shore islands by skipping from block to block, the boys, made their way without mishap to an island about 300 yards off-shore.

When they sought to return, they found that their retreat had been cut off by shifting ice, which left an expanse of water where there was once an "ice-bridge" to shore.

Realizing their plight, the youths tried to attract attention of off-shore crowds by shouting. The booming of the surf drowned out their cries, however.

For three hours, that seemed an eternity to the lads, they kept up their yells, and finally attracted the attention of two other youths.

The two, after launching a rowboat, started to the rescue. With the waves pounding against the sides of the boat and the spray of the water beating their faces, the rescuers worked their way to the island.

Here this was written to the narration. The party rowed back to shore and were safe aground just as the darkness of night was settling over the lake.

Those marooned were: Paul Miller, 14; Charles Beardsley, 14, Edward Nagel, 15, and Merle Stevenson, 17.

Those who played the role of the rescuers were Paul and Fred McClintic.

The four were suffering from shock and exposure today and were confined to bed.

SLAYER OF COUPLE PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Insanity To Be Defense of "Eddie" Kaltenbaugh; Trial Feb. 18

CANTON, Jan. 21—"Eddie" Kaltenbaugh, confessed slayer of Mr. and Mrs. John Oser, of Canal Fulton, pleaded not guilty to first degree murder charges when arraigned before Judge A. W. Agler in common pleas court today. Trial date was set for Feb. 18. His attorneys indicated insanity would be the defense.

The farmhand will be tried first for the murder of Mrs. Oser and should a verdict of not guilty be returned the state will immediately move for trial for the slaying of Mr. Oser. A jury venire of 75 will be drawn by Sheriff Ed Gibson today.

Kaltenbaugh confessed that he killed Mr. and Mrs. Oser to obtain possession of their automobile in order to make an impression on a girl in New Castle, Pa.

REPRESENTATIVE ILL

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—State Representative Dr. R. M. Hughey of Washington C. H., was reported to be slightly improved at University hospital here this morning. He is suffering from a serious kidney ailment. Dr. Hughey has been ill for more than a month, but until Saturday, his condition was not considered serious.

CROSSING NEAR ATTICA CLAIMS 14TH VICTIM

ATTICA, Jan. 21 — Two more white "death crosses" will be erected at the Lake Shore Electric and state route No. 4, crossing north of here, as another fatal accident was recorded today. Already there are 12 crosses.

Miss Mary Carpenter, 20, school teacher of Attica, and Edward Rinzel, 21, of Willard, met death there late last night when the auto they were riding in, crashed into an interurban car.

GARAGE MAN ROBBED

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Jan. 21—Three armed bandits robbed Frank Gable, Hendrysburg garage owner, of $200 early this morning. The thugs locked Gable in a bedroom and escaped in an auto.

COUNTY OFFICE EARNINGS FOR YEAR $49,942

Receipts in Three Offices Exceed Salaries, Report Shows

COMPILED BY AUDITOR

Payroll of Officials and Aids in 1928 Summarized at $77,174

County offices earned $49,942.23 in fees in 1928, a report made public today by County Auditor Earl E. Thomas, shows. Officials, deputies and clerks in the offices were paid $77,174.90 during the same period, according to the report.

The office of clerk of courts, the treasurer's office and the recorder's office earned more in fees than was paid out by the county in salaries, the report shows. All fees, with one exception, collected by county offices are turned over to the county general fund.

Auditor's Totals Largest

The auditor's office collected a total of $13,311.91 in fees. Salaries of officials and clerks in the office amounted to $14,458. The treasurer's office paid $13,109.00 in salaries and earned $11,942.90 in fees.

The probate court collected $7,287.67 in fees. Of this amount $510.45 was retained by the judge of the court as his fees in inheritance tax cases. Fees in these cases are the only ones held by any county official. Salaries in the probate court amounted to $8,184.05.

Offices Self-Sustaining

The clerk of courts paid $8,135 in salaries and earned $8,220 in fees. The recorder's office earned $6,533.51 and paid $4,161.00 in salaries. The surveyor's office paid $14,247.65 in salaries. This office collects no fees.

The office of prosecuting attorney paid $3,470 in salaries. No fees are collected by the office. The sheriff's office paid salaries amounting to $9,-230 and collected fees totalling $2,-224.18.

Salaries paid in 1928 to members of the board of county commissioners follow:

O. J. Hord, $1,340.51; Ora C. McCurdy, $122.11; W. M. King, $1,-963.52; and O. W. Klinamon, $1,-468.92.

DOG LICENSE SALE 319 ON FINAL DAY

Over 800 Canines In County Without Tags, Auditor Estimates

Income from the sale of dog tags last Saturday amounted to $690.00, it was stated today by County Auditor Earl E. Thomas. The amount represented the sale price of 310 tags.

Saturday's sale brought the total number of licenses issued for this year to 3,661. The dead line for tag sales without the addition of a $1 penalty fell at midnight last night. This was largely responsible for the rush for tags Saturday, Auditor Thomas claims.

Many Untagged

Auditor Thomas estimates that there are between 800 and 900 dogs still without tags in the county. Last year nearly 4,000 tags were sold. Tag sales up to Saturday night were 174 behind the same date last year, records reveal.

A 50 per cent increase in the price of dog tags this year is expected to cause a slight decrease in the number of dogs in the county. The increase in the tag price was voted by the board of county commissioners when the dog and kennel fund was exhausted before all sheep claims for 1928 were paid. The increase makes the price of tags for male dogs $1.50, for females $3.00 and for kennels, $15.

Large Increase

There are 1,400 more dogs in the county now than there were in 1928, it is shown in a report completed today by County Dog Warden Dale Rhoades. The warden submitted a report today to W. O. Bowser, of Waynokonta, secretary of the dog wardens' association.

The warden's report showed that he impounded 433 dogs in 1928. Only one was redeemed by the owner. Two owners paid impounding fees to have their dogs destroyed.

BOMBER AWAITED

Big Plane Due in Dayton for Tests; Carries Five Guns

DAYTON, Jan. 21—"The Panther," most ferocious bomber in the U. S. air service, is expected to arrive at Wright field here today, for testing purposes, from Bolling field, Washington. The flight is dependent upon weather conditions.

The new bomber mounts five machine guns, carried 2,200 pounds of bombs and full crew. It is capable of 128 miles an hour maximum speed and a cruising speed of 100 miles per hour with full load and compliment of men. It is the first of 35 ships ordered by the air service and was flown to Bolling field Saturday from Bristol, Pa., where it was built.

ROOSEVELT'S SON ILL

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 21—Anxiety was felt today for the recovery of James Roosevelt, eldest son of Gov. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is seriously ill at the executive mansion with influenza, which is threatening to develop into pneumonia. Young Roosevelt is a senior at Harvard.

EIGHT YEARS UNPAID

Not one cent of his salary during his four years as lieutenant governor and a like term as governor of Massachusetts did Alvin T. Fuller (above) collect. He refused remuneration on the grounds that it was a privilege to serve his state. The accrued salary totals $50,000.

HAAS FILES MOTION FOR NEW HEARING

Local Real Estate Man Opens Fight To Obtain License

Carl R. Haas, Marion real estate broker, has filed a motion with the state real estate licensing board for a rehearing of charges which resulted in the board denying Haas and E. R. Mulvaine, a salesman, licenses for this year. The motion was filed with the board today.

Haas is being represented by attorney Homer E. Johnson and attorney Grant E. Mouser sr., of the law firm of Mouser, Young, Mouser & Wiant. Unless the rehearing is granted by the board, Haas will take the case to the common pleas court of Franklin county, he said today.

The licensing board, headed by J. W. Jacoby, Marion attorney and real estate broker, denied Haas and Mulvaine licenses at a hearing held in Columbus last Wednesday. A complaint filed against Haas and Mulvaine by Harry Lewis, of Flats, was the basis of action by the board.

The complaint contained a recitation of a transaction between Lewis and Wooster R. Beaman, of Spencer st., in which Mulvaine, a salesman for Haas, acted as the agent. It was claimed that errors existed in the contract which made it misleading to Lewis.

Haas stated today that the only error in the contract was a transposition of names, due to an error of the typist.

COOPER ANNOUNCES TWO APPOINTMENTS

Gill Named Fire Marshal; Anderson Gets Highway Job

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Appointment of Roy R. Gill, Akron, 46, as state fire marshal, and the selection of Wayne W. Anderson, Medina, as division engineer in state highway district No. 3, with headquarters at Ashland, was announced today by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper.

Selection of Gill, who succeeds Louis F. Miller, Columbus, Democrat, was made by Commerce Director Edward Schorr. Highway Director Robert Wahl selected Anderson, a Republican, to succeed T. S. Brindle, Ashland.

Gill will take office tomorrow. Anderson's appointment is not effective until Feb. 1. The fire marshal's salary is $4,500 a year.

AFGHAN REBEL CHIEF IS REPORTED MISSING

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 21—Rumors were prevalent here today that Bacha Sakao, Afghan rebel chieftain who proclaimed himself king last week, had either been killed or had fled from Kabul.

There was no confirmation of these rumors nor were there any reports indicating who was responsible for the rumored death or flight of Sakao.

Amanullah Khan and others of the royal Afghan family still are reported steadfastly opposed to giving allegiance to the rebel leader in any way.

WOMEN TO DUEL

One Charges Other Insulted Her; Populace Awaits Outcome

BUDAPEST, Jan. 21 — The first duel ever fought in Hungary between two women will take place here today unless the authorities intervene or the combatants take advantage of their feminine prerogative of changing their minds.

Miss Katherina Forso, a music teacher, challenged Mrs. Anna Kovac to a duel with foils because, she claimed, Anna insulted her. Mrs. Kovac retaliated with the allegation that the music teacher flirted with her husband.

The populace is awaiting the outcome of this unusual "affair of honor" with keen interest.

HOOVER BIDS FAREWELL TO WASHINGTON

President-Elect Goes South To Relax In Sunshine of Florida

PARTY LEADERS PLEASED

See Next Executive Making Every Effort To Maintain Harmony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Herbert Hoover said farewell to the capital today.

Accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and a small personal party, the president-elect left for Miami Beach, Florida, at 10:37 o'clock on a special train on the Atlantic Coast line.

Mr. Hoover did not arrive at the station until a few minutes after the scheduled departure of the train at 10:30 a. m.

A crowd of several hundred persons gathered in the concourse and applauded the president-elect.

The departure was further delayed while Mr. and Mrs. Hoover stood on the rear platform to be photographed. They waved goodbye to the crowd as the train gathered momentum and disappeared into a tunnel.

For the next month he will relax in Florida's sunshine, fish in tropical waters, begin work on his inaugural speech, and complete the personnel of the cabinet which he will take into office with him on March 4, inaugurated in Six Weeks

Six weeks from today on the windswept plains of the capitol he will raise his right hand and take the oath of office as the thirty-first president of the United States.

As president-elect he has accomplished much in Washington in a fortnight. He hopes to accomplish much more in a month away from the political pulling and hauling in Washington. He will have at least four weeks of comparative seclusion on an island in the middle of Biscayne Bay where he will see only those persons he wants to see and where his every waking moment is not caught up in the cross currents of personal contacts with politicians.

Mr. Hoover leaves Washington with half of his cabinet regarded as fairly well settled.

Andrew W. Mellon will remain as secretary of the treasury, and William M. Jardine will carry on as secretary of agriculture. The decision as to these holdovers is considered as definite and final.

Party Leaders Contented

Final decisions as to this trio perhaps will be reached during the next month. Perhaps they may await until the president-elect's return from Florida, which probably will be between Feb. 22 and March 2. Mr. Hoover's inclination is to return to the capital at least 10 days before inauguration, but some of his advisers are recommending that he stay away from Washington until the eve of inauguration. The ultimate decision probably depends upon developments.

Not only is the president-elect well satisfied with what he has accomplished here, but the party leaders are fairly well content as well. Their fears, more or less openly expressed during the South American tour, that the new commander-in-chief was going to "raise Cain" with the party

RADIO RESTRICTIONS MAY BE CALLED OFF

Commission Votes To Postpone Date Until March 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Restrictions on chain broadcasting may be modified, it was indicated today following action of the federal radio commission in voting three to two to postpone the effective date of the restrictions until March 1. The previous date was Jan. 31.

Commissioners Sykes and Rickard voted against the delay.

Under the restrictions chain broadcasting would be limited to one hour a day on clear channels except by stations 500 miles apart. If the plan goes into effect some important regions of the country may be deprived of chain broadcasting, according to a survey by commission engineers.

3 HURT IN FALL

Plane Nosedives Over Airport After Search for Boys

WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 21—The condition of three men injured in an airplane crash here yesterday was pronounced as critical by attending physicians today.

The injured are: Capt. Fred Kreuberg, former German war ace, fractured skull; Carl Cook, local deputy sheriff, broken back, and Otto Schmidt, internal injuries.

They were hurt when their plane, piloted by Captain Kreuberg, nosedived over the local airport. They were returning from an air hunt over the Brunswick river area for four missing boys.

The boys have not been found. They started on a hunting trip several days ago.

DELAY INJUNCTION HEARING

LONDON, Jan. 21—Court action on Gen. Bramwell Booth's injunction restraining the Salvation Army high council from acting upon its resolution declaring him unfit to continue in office today was postponed until Friday.

KILLER JAWORSKI FINALLY EXECUTED

Death Ends Spectacular Crime Career of Arch Bandit

strong light directly over the chair. On the walls were painted the ironical admonition, "Silence."

The witnesses took seats at the rear of the room.

Quickly the death chair was roped off into a 15 foot enclosure. Inside stood the warden, two doctors, several guards in uniform and the gaunt, hollow-cheeked executioner, Robert Elliott.

The little gray door opened gently, and in came Jaworski, guards holding him by the armpits.

His broad Slavic countenance was inscrutible. There was a far away expression in his glazed eyes. His hair was clipped to the skull.

He walked with a slight limp, his leg having been paralyzed by a bullet. He looked straight ahead.

Three Steps to Chair

He wore a white shirt without a collar, black pants and black felt slippers. The pants of the left leg was split from the knee down and his bare leg showed as he limped in.

It was only three steps to the chair. Jaworski gave that sinister contraption one quick look as he was half lifted into it.

Quickly and deftly two guards drew the brown leather mask, with tiny slits for the eyes and a small opening at the nose, across his face, and fastened it at the back. It was a grotesque looking affair that covered all of his face and even his neck.

Amid a terrible silence, broken only by the sizzling of a steam radiator the guards drew heavy black straps across his body and legs, fastening him tightly to the chair.

Turns on Switch

The faces of more than one newspaperman paled. The reporter to my left trembled and turned his eyes away.

Warden Stanley P. Ashe glanced at his wrist watch. It was exactly 7 a. m. Tall, gray-haired executioner Elliott ran his hands over the helmet and the doomed man's head and over the straps on his body and stepped back to the switch which was directly beneath 10 blazing lights set in a black background much similar to a large open safe.

Elliott rammed down the lever. There was a crunching sound as he did it and the killing current of manmade lightning—enough "juice" to light 60 homes—was sent hurtling through the prisoner's body.

The form in the chair leaped as if to break the strong leather straps which held it. There was a sputtering drone and a sizzle that reminded one of a sputtering Fourth of July sparkler.

Hands Clinch Chair

A thin, gray wisp of smoke pushed itself out from under the electrode that had been clamped on the condemned man's head. It wafted up toward the overhead light and through a large silver-hued ventilator or funnel hanging from the ceiling directly over the chair.

Jaworski's hands, clinging tightly to the broad, oaken arms of the chair, turned beet red. A blood color also suffused the neck, and no doubt the face, which was concealed by the mask.

Smoke emanated in waves from the bare left leg where the electrode had made the other contact.

The cords of the man's neck stood out like steel bands. He sat bolt upright in the chair.

There was a strange, gruesome cranking of machinery as Elliott rattled away with the rheostat, a contrivance that regulates the amperage which was applied with varying degrees of intensity after the initial 2,000 volts had been shot through the body.

Body Relaxes

The seconds dragged on. Each second seemed an hour to the awe-stricken witnesses.

A radiator sizzled loudly amid the awful silence of the room.

Suddenly Jaworski's body relaxed, like a tired man collapsing. He was dead, of course, but the executioner maintained the current at a lesser degree.

Outside the prison a priest, the Rev. P. A. McCreese, was chanting the litany of his faith. He was not in the death chamber because Jaworski, a former choir boy, had refused spiritual consolation on the ground that he was an atheist, and had even talked against religion from a soap box.

Declared Dead

The current was shut off. The executioner and the two physicians, Dr. Ezra L. Hickok of the prison and Dr. J. V. Foster of State college, stepped forward. The latter had witnessed his first execution. The executioner lifted up the eye-slit of the mask and the doctors peered in.

Guards ripped down the man's shirt, revealing his bare chest. Dr. Hickok applied a stethescope to a spot over Jaworski's heart. Then he stepped back and in crisp tones said:

"Gentlemen, I declare Paul Jaworski dead."

CLAIM FOR $8,333 IS FILED IN COURT

Judgment Asked by Marion Man Against Florida Firms

R. T. Lewis, in an amended answer and cross petition filed in common pleas court today, asks for a judgment of $8,333.33 against Gordon & Raymond Inc. and the Lee-Sher Co. Inc., two Florida real estate concerns. The Florida concerns brought suit against Lewis for collection of two notes amounting to $11,111.10. In his amended answer Lewis claims the notes were given without consideration and are not collectible.

The amount asked in the cross petition, Lewis claims, is due him from a real estate transaction in Florida. Lewis is represented by Attorney J. W. Jacoby. The law firm of Guthery, Strelitz & Guthery represents the Florida concerns.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements, which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

organization and revenge himself upon those who opposed his nomination, have been largely dissipated. Mr. Hoover naturally is going to remember his friends, but his two weeks in Washington demonstrated that he is of a mind to let bygones be bygones in so far as some of the elder statesmen of the party who opposed him last spring are concerned.

Counsels Harmony

Half a dozen awkward and embarrassing factional disputes in southern Republican organizations have been ironed out more or less to the satisfaction of the principals under the guiding counsel of Mr. Hoover. He has constantly counselled harmony and teamwork.

In addition, three other appointments are closed in the "probable" column—William J. Donovan of New York, as attorney general; Walter F. Brown of Ohio, as postmaster general; and Louis S. Cates of Utah, as secretary of the interior. Donovan and Brown now occupy assistants berths in the Coolidge administration. Cates, a wealthy mining engineer, has never held public office.

It is a very small party that accompanies Mr. Hoover south. Besides Mrs. Hoover and her niece Miss Janet Large, there is Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the national committee, and Lawrence Richey, who has long been one of Mr. Hoover's secretaries. George Akerson, his acting secretary is being left behind in Washington to maintain liaison with those people Mr. Hoover desires to maintain contact with. Akerson will keep the president-elect informed of developments in the capital, legislative, political, and otherwise.

Takes Long Ride

Mr. Hoover's last day in the capital was a quiet one. He went to church at the Friends' meeting house, and in the afternoon took a long motor ride into the Shenandoah district of Virginia. This gave rise to reports that he already is considering the establishment of a summer White House somewhere in that region, and that he was inspecting possible sites. It is more probable, however, that he went for the ride, for he frequently "thinks out" problems in the back seat of a big car whizzing along quiet roads.

Not many stops will be made enroute to Florida, under present plans. He will reach Jacksonville tomorrow morning at 8 a. m., and Miami at 2 p. m.

Mexico Takes Steps to Insure Neutrality of Border

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 21—Despite claims of the Guatemalan government that the revolt in the northwestern provinces has been virtually suppressed, the Mexican government is taking steps to guard the neutrality of the frontier in the event of future fighting.

It was understood today that a regiment of Mexican cavalry and a battalion of infantry are being sent to reinforce the frontier guards. The war department had announced last night that such precautions would be taken.

TWO COACHING JOBS OFFERED TO MILLER

Washington and Ohio State After Former Notre Dame Star

DEFIANCE, Jan. 21—Don Miller, one of the famous Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, may accept the offer of head coach at the University of Washington, Seattle, or the position of back field coach at Ohio State university, rather than return to Georgia Tech where he was back field coach last year.

"State is offering me no more than Georgia Tech," Don declared today "and, you know, Tech will have practically its entire square back next year. However, since I am practicing law in the 'off season' with my brothers in Cleveland, it might be better to take the Ohio State position."

He refused to make a definite statement, however, stating that he expects something definite from the Washington school to be awaiting him on his return to Cleveland. Don intimated that 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon was the tentative time set for him to telephone Sam Willaman newly appointed head coach at State, who offered him the job, his definite decision.

MINSTREL PROGRAM PLANNED AT WALDO

Young Men's Club To Give Show in Connection with Institute

The Waldo Young Men's Farming club will give a minstrel entertainment Thursday night of this week at 7:30 o'clock in the Waldo High school to defray the expenses of the Waldo Farmers' Institute.

The first of the two numbers will be a black-faced comedy in three acts, "The Order of the Boiled Owl." The cast is as follows: Wilbur Mochel, "Hooten Screech"; Howard Hecker, "Salt. N. Pepper"; Levi Ebert, Pete Rolonum"; Ed Heimlich, "Jinks Kibosh"; Robert Howald, "Al A. Hic"; Carl Berninger, "Tossup Bones"; Harry Ruth, "Scoop M. Inn"; Calvin Retter, "Hickry Nut"; Harold Yake, "Heckin Lyson"; Ralph F. Augenstein, "Willie Grow"; Joe Miller, "Noah Lott"; and Harold Augenstein, confederate.

A colored dialogue, "African Justice," will include the following cast: Donald Augenstein, "Judge Solemn Face"; Frank Renger, "Sheriff Johnson Grass"; Elmer Rengert, "Rastus Fuss-Feathers;" Frank Heimlich, Sulkum Hot-Foot"; Lawrence Howald, "Gamaliel Soap-Suds"; William Oborn, "Trombone Thick-Lips"; George Steven, "Cornelius Bonehead", Eugene Oborn, "drunken coon"; Harold Augenstein, "first cocn."

A colored quartet will include Oscar Kaelber, Wilbur Mochel, Harry Ruth and Elmer Rengert, with Arthur Augenstein and Ralph R. Augenstein as local wits.

Music for the program will be furnished by the All-Ag. orchestra, directed by Oscar Kaelber.

HOLDUP MAN

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21—"Hand over $200, I'm hard up," read a note thrust into the cage of Oscar Fender, teller at the Lincoln National bank, here this morning. A hidden gun menaced the teller.

Fender reached for the currency—also letting his toe touch the burglar alarm button. As the bell clanged out its warning, the would-be holdup man rushed from the bank and was lost in the crowds in Vine st.

CONDITION IMPROVED

The condition of Henry C. Fortner, 678 Marshall st, who was injured while at work in the Marion Steam Shovel Co. plant Saturday, was reported greatly improved at City hospital this morning. Fortner sustained a compound fracture of the leg when it was struck by a flying chain.

make Chicago's streets safe for law abiding citizens."

Meanwhile, Chicago's half-world—that part of it not already behind bars—cringed and ran for cover as the terrifying sirens of bureau cars echoed though the streets.

As the unprecedented police round-up gained momentum yesterday and last night, a panicky exodus from the city of crooks, racketeers and hood lums tried to match its pace.

Although sporadic raids had been made during the day, the main offensive was not launched until dusk last night when Commissioner of Detectives John Stege gathered 500 men at headquarters. Deputy Commissioner John Egan acted as Stege's assistant.

All Men In Service

Supporting this central force, each precinct captain had under his command at the precinct station 20 men in plain clothes. All available men were pressed into service. The men were allotted places in automobiles. With everything "set" Commissioner Stege flashed the signal to "go."

Every section of the city was invaded simultaneously. Downtown hotels, speakeasies, dance halls, cabarets, even the fashionable "night clubs" along the gold coast swarmed with detectives and uniformed police.

Gangland was in a panic!

The prisoners ranged from unshaven, cap adorned thugs to immaculately groomed men in evening dress. Every recognized gangster or racketeer and every person found in possession of a gun, were taken into custody.

Use Axes on Club

The respectable hotels yielded their quota of "dressed up" gunmen. Many others were seized in theater lobbies as the shows dismissed their throngs.

The doors of the Minerva Athletic club again felt the blows of police axes despite an injunction supposed to bar police from the West Side's fashionable gambling place. Axes were resorted to when the doorman barred the entrance as the raiders arrived.

Georg- Choppas, manager of the club, refused to open the safe when the police ordered and the combination was hammered off. The safe yielded $600 in envelopes ticketed as "race bets and dice money." The envelopes were turned over to State's Attorney John A. Swanson.

Commissioner Russell proudly boasted today that, although a few minor characters slipped through the police dragnet, the main offensive accounted for the "400" of Chicago gangland," all of whom are now "on the inside looking out."

To Continue Arrests

Although he admitted the main drive is over, Commissioner Russell declared other gangsters and known underworld characters would be "picked up" as fast as they dared expose themselves. He believes the few that escaped the "roundup" are fast putting distance between themselves and Chicago.

Commissioner Stege's desk today bore visible proof of the police activity. It groaned under the weight of a hundred guns of all descriptions. Other guns were held at the various precinct stations.

Housing capacity for prisoners was taxed in every precinct as well as at the main jail. At the detective bureau the women's quarters were pressed into service to provide cell room.

Ike Roderick, the well known bondsman, was told to leave the headquarters building as there would be "no business" for him today.

GIVE PROGRAM

Temperance Theme Taken Up by Agosta School Pupils

"Temperance" was the subject of a program presented by pupils of the Agosta school at the school house Friday night.

For the opening number, the entire school joined in singing "America the Beautiful." Scripture readings were given by Dorothy Canouse, Lillian Whittington gave a reading on "Life" and also lead the school in repeating the "Lord's Prayer." The Agosta High Boys' quartet, composed of Clarence Gracely, Herman Powelson, Donald Dutton and Robert Brown, gave a selection entitled, "Stars of a Summer Night." This was followed by an exercise by Isabelle Strange, Mary Lou Kunnamon, Madeline De Haven, Helen Drake, Martha Schaber, Clara Mae Eisele, Ruth Smith, Ruth Withrow, and Ivan Hoch.

An exercise, "Citizenship," was given by Melvin Chapman, Golda Kinsler and Frances Imbody. Helen Kraner gave two piano solos. Following presentation of an article on "Prohibition," by Bernice Baker, Laura Eisele rendered two vocal solos. Elizabeth Withrow, Helen Powelson and Victoria Korody conducted a "Flag Service," and lead the school in the flag salute.

The newly elected mayor of the school, George Tron, gave a short talk on prohibition and pointed out an ideal standard of living to the school. Virginia Smith followed with a poem on the same subject.

The program was in charge of Supt. D. L. Mills and Miss Anetta Nicholson, principal. At the close, Superintendent Mills called on Robert Rush, a former graduate of the school, for an extemporaneous talk.

Announcement was made that the glee club concert, under the direction of Miss Josephine Almendinger, will present its program Jan. 22, followed by a box social.

U. C. T. ARRANGES FOR DINNER-DANCE

Plans for a dinner-dance at the ball room of the Hotel Harding, Feb. 9, were completed Saturday night at a meeting of Marion Council, United Commercial Travelers, last night at the Elks hall. The dance will be for members and friends. Tickets went on sale today. The sale being in charge of Stanley Strayer, Wayne McCurdy and E. H. Huggins.

GIRL, 9, SAVES YOUNGER BROTHER FROM FLAMES

AKRON, Jan. 21—Junior Hinton, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hinton, was rescued from a fire which swept their apartment early today by his sister Helen, 9. The children were asleep when a chemical tank in the basement exploded. The girl tried to lead her little brother through dense clouds, of smoke to the front entrance. She was forced back and finally made her way with her brother through the rear door. The parents were absent at the time.

12 MEN ARE BURNED IN MINE EXPLOSION

No One Killed in Blast Following Cave-in at Wilkes-Barre

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 21—Twelve miners were burned at the Baltimore No. 5 mine of the Hudson Coal Co. today in an explosion following a tremendous cave-in, believed at first to have been an earthquake.

Company officials declared at noon that no fatalities had occurred and all workers had been accounted for.

Six of the burned miners were in a serious condition, hospital attaches reported. The others were less seriously hurt.

From the scene of the explosion in the east end section of the city it was reported that a score of other miners went to their homes after receiving first aid treatment at the mine.

The initial cave-in was along a stretch one-half mile in length. Nine years ago at the same operation, 99 miners lost their lives.

First reports were that five miners had been killed instantly and that others were entombed as a result of the early squeeze. Five hundred workers went inside to clear the debris and rescue the injured men. The squeeze occurred at midnight but it did not become known generally until today.

CONFIRMATION VOTE DUE ON WEST TODAY

Chicagoan Will Know Whether He Will Keep Interior Post Until March 4

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Whether Roy O. West of Chicago will remain secretary of the interior until March 4 was to be determined by the senate this afternoon.

A vote on confirmation of the nomination of the Chicagoan will be taken at that time, after two and a half additional hours of secret debate on his fitness.

Already more than seven hours have been given to consideration of the nomination. The senate went into executive session behind closed doors Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, recessed at 5:30, and devoted nearly five hours to the matter Saturday.

FOUR ARRESTED

Local Men Get Suspended Fines on Coal Theft Charge

Four men were before Judge William R. Martin in municipal court this morning to face charges of petit larceny. They were arrested for stealing coal.

Each of the four, E. D. Rich, 100 Edwards st., Henry Bennett, 215 Edwards st., Frank Myers, Hoyle st., and Harlan Coffman, 214 Edwards st., was fined $10 and costs upon pleas of guilty. The fines were suspended upon payment for the coal and costs of the case.

WOMAN INSISTS HUSBAND CAPTIVE OF GANGSTERS

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 21—Although police openly express their doubts, Mrs. Vina Hayes, wife of Lucius Hayes, missing Flint contractor, insisted today her husband is being held captive by gangsters of Cicero, Ill.

Since the disappearance of Hayes last December, authorities have been at a loss as to his whereabouts. Mrs. Hayes says she received a letter from Chicago last week which stated the contractor had been kidnaped and imprisoned by Cicero gangsters.

CITY PREPARING TO START STREET WORK

Estimates on Year's Projects Being Drawn Up by Engineer Cathers

Work of preparing estimates for various street improvements this spring and summer throughout the city is being rapidly pushed forward at the office of City Engineer T. S. Cathers and everything will be in readiness to let the contracts within the next few weeks.

The program confronting the engineer's office at the present time calls for the paving and resurfacing of 10 city streets, construction of one sidewalk and one storm water and sanitary sewer.

Estimates About Ready

Estimates for the paving of Homer st. and Pennsylvania av., are about complete and these contracts will probably be the first to be let on the paving part of the program. However, the Elm Heights sewer will be the first project on which work will start.

The estimates on East Center st and Main st. are also being prepared by the engineers and this work will be rushed to completion.

Prepare for Bids

It is expected that officials will be ready to receive bids on two or three jobs by Feb. 11. As soon as bids are let work will be started by the contractor at the first break in the weather. It is hoped to have most of the paving jobs completed by the middle of the summer.

Following are the 10 streets expected to be paved. Legislation has been passed or approval of petitions has been made on all except two:

East Center st., Main to Greenwood st; Main st., Big Four tracks to Columbia st.; North Prospect st, resurfacing, Mark st. to Erie tracks; West Center st., Oak st. to Main st.; Chicago av., Center st. to Wilson av., and from Wilson av., to north terminus, Lake st., Prospect st., to east terminus; Pennsylvania av., Center st. to Church st. and Homer st., Center st., to Church st.

The one sidewalk will be constructed on the west side of Nye st., from Brown av., south to first alley. The sewers will be constructed in Elm Heights.

Columbus Rookies Brave Fire to Rescue Their Sax

COLUMBUS, Jan 21—Two rookies at Fort Hayes, army post here, were supremely happy today, happiness resulting from a job well done in which they braved fire to rescue a saxophone.

Private Edgar Devault, 19, owner of the sax, and Sergt W E Brown, both members of the Fort Hayes army band decided to do some practicing last night They were in the living room of Brown While tooting out the strains fire was discovered Both fled to the street leaving the saxophone in the burning house

Devault rushed back into the house and when he failed to reappear, his buddy plunged after him Devault lay unconscious at the foot of a stairs He was dragged out by Brown and revived, and today was little the worse for the experience Brown went back into the blazing house and did what Devault is led to do He rescued the saxophone

Despite reports that the fire was caused by 'hot' music firemen said the conflagration was due to defective wiring

TWO MAJOR BILLS BEFORE CONGRESS

Six Weeks Remain Before Death of Session, Little Legislation Seen

WASHINGTON Jan 21—With six weeks remaining before the death of the Seventieth congress the administration today faced the task of enacting two major measures the new cruiser and the reapportionment bills before completing its legislative program

The house having completed its share of the congressional program appeared reconciled to the end but the senate threatened to prove a tardy patient right up to the final gong Both cruiser bill and reapportionment bill have passed the house but require senate approval to become laws Both face serious opposition

Hundreds of other bills will be enacted by both branches before March 4 but these chiefly will be of local character or a personal nature So far as major legislation is concerned and with the possible exceptions of the cruiser and reapportionment bills the legislative record of the seventieth congress and the Coolidge administration appears to have been written The six remaining weeks probably will be given over to politics and oratory though the naval bill will be come a law

The chief activity of the house this week will be to further tariff hearings in committee session as a preparation for the coming special session of the new congress Next in importance will be the appropriation bills, a routine matter

LEWIS NOT TO BE ON UTILITY BOARD

Harpster Man Unable To Accept State Appointment from Cooper

Charles H Lewis, of Harpster banker and former lieutenant governor, will not serve as one of the new members of the state utilities commission, according to a news report received from Columbus today

Lewis, it was said, had been definitely selected by Governor Cooper as one of the appointees

Illness in his family and demands upon his time by private business affairs are said to be the reasons for Lewis having declined the appointment.

This news came in connection with an announcement that the governor will name two new members of the commission despite the fact that two exceptionally important rate cases are pending before the body One is the Logan Gas Co case, involving Marion and a group of other Ohio cities, and the Ohio Bell Telephone Co case.

In commenting upon plans for appointing new members of the commission at this time Governor Cooper said that to retain old members merely because they are acquainted with certain important cases would if observed as a permanent policy, create a never changing personnel With that thought in mind he has decided the new members might as well start at once

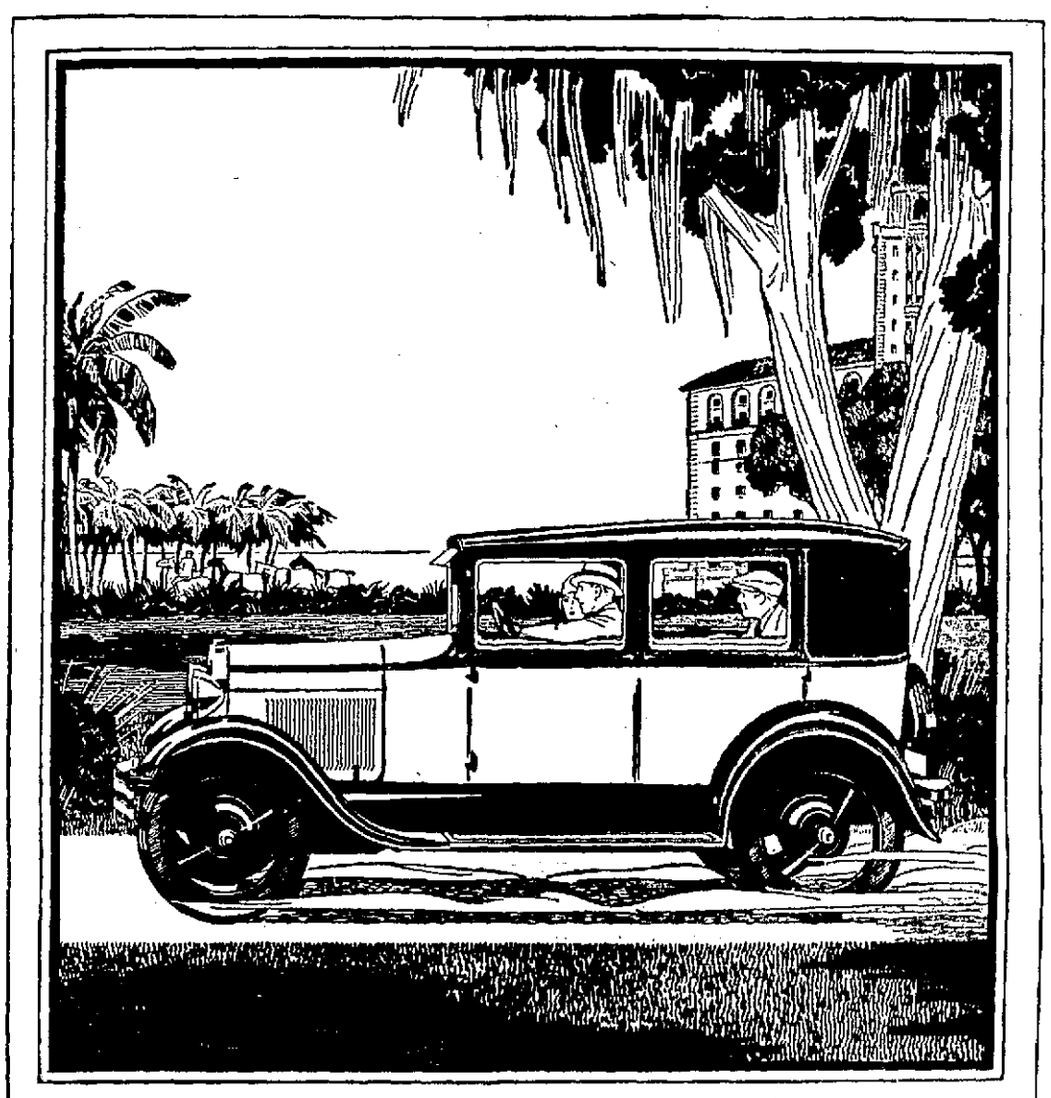
BEAUTY AND UTILITY ARE COMBINED IN THE NEW FORD



The new Fordor Sedan is impressively smart yet sturdy and substantial. An unusually comfortable car because of its wide, deeply cushioned seats, generous room between front and rear seats, transverse springs and Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers. Finished in a choice of beautiful two-tone color harmonies.

WHEN you see the new Ford, you are impressed instantly by its trim, graceful lines and air of sturdy strength. Its very appearance is a reflection of the alert, capable performance of the car. Without being extreme, it has struck a new note in automobile designing.

A particularly interesting feature of the new Ford is the way beauty has been combined with utility. This is found in the length, width and height of the body, the size and shape of the radiator, the position of the gasoline tank in the cowl, the outward flow of the body, the design of the welded steel spoke wheels, the shape and position of the full nickeled headlamps, the sweep and curve of the heavy full crown fenders.

Everything has been planned for service

When a thing perfectly fits its uses, it is pleasing to the eye. Every part of the new Ford has been designed and built not only to be attractive, but with a very definite thought of the work it has to do.

Even in the very little things you can see evidence of quality of material, careful workmanship and quiet good taste. The upholstery is of woolen material, rich and luxurious, yet long-wearing.

Attractive colors add to beauty of the new Ford

Every one of the new Ford body types is available in a choice of several beautiful two-tone color harmonies with attractive striping. This is an unusual feature in a low-price car.

The finish is pyroxylin lacquer, selected for its enduring qualities. It is not affected by heat or cold, is not easily marred or scratched, and polishes to a beautiful luster. Once a month at least your car should be washed and polished.

The beauty of the Ford is not of the outside only, but extends deep down into every part—even to those hidden parts which you may never see. In the eyes of the engineer and technical man, the mechanical beauty of the new Ford is one of its greatest features.

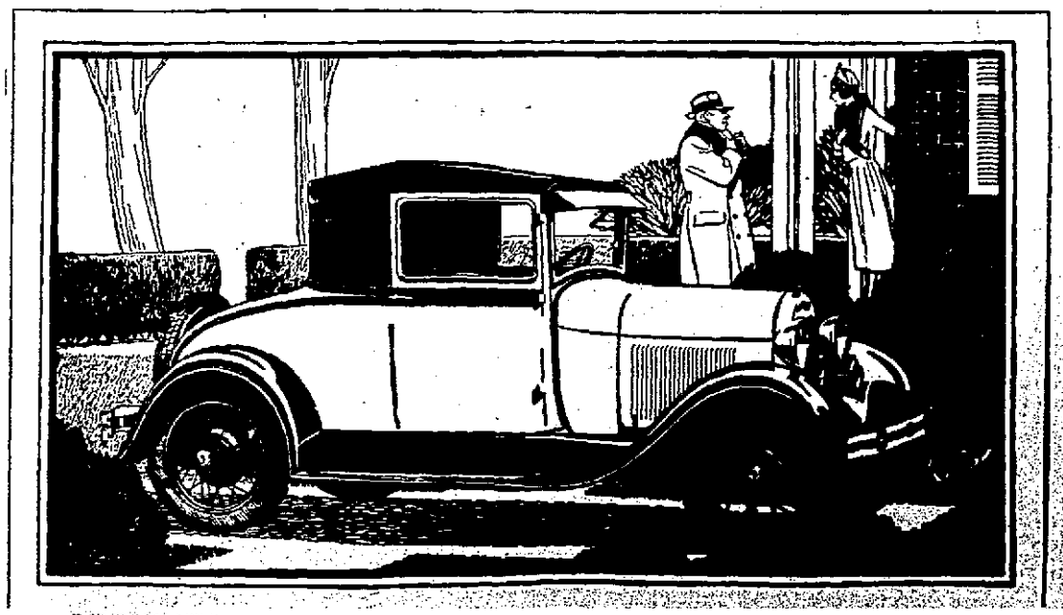
The practical beauty of a fine machine

There is beauty, for instance, in the fine steel forgings which are used everywhere in the chassis of the new Ford where there is a possibility of wear—in the manner in which electric welding has been developed to give increased strength without increased weight—in the simplicity of the cooling, lubrication, ignition, and fuel systems—in the extensive use of ball and roller bearings—in the simple operation of the fully enclosed six-brake system—in the close limits of accuracy maintained in the manufacture of important parts—in the way the engine develops its speed, acceleration and power without sacrificing reliability or economy.

To the man who drives his automobile many thousands of miles every year and who looks to it for continuous service at low cost, this mechanical beauty is of more importance even than beauty of line and finish.

For it is a reflection of simplicity of design, quality of materials and careful workmanship, which are the three fundamental factors in motor car performance.

There is indeed no greater tribute to the value of the new Ford than the simple, homely phrase which you hear so often from Ford owners, experienced garage mechanics and all who know and understand the workings of an automobile—"It is a sweet mechanical job."



The new Ford Business Coupe has been especially designed for professional men, executives, salesmen—for all who use an automobile extensively for business and Handy package space behind seat and extremely large

Daily Proverb—"There is a different fame goes about of every man"

The Washington Star says that, between pictures and type, "crime is one of our best advertised industries." Why so conservative?

It begins to look as though the dissolution of the Standard Oil company something like two decades ago was something more than a gesture to circumvent the law.

The Hon. Henry S. Johnston has now met all the requirements essential to filling the gubernatorial chair out in Oklahoma. He has been impeached by action of an Oklahoma house committee.

There's no occasion for surprise over the announcement that the alienist, who claimed the former college student down in Atlanta who killed for the thrill it gave, found him to be insane. Wasn't that for what they were hired?

During the cold snap of the early part of last week Alliance reported a temperature of twenty degrees below zero. There are many respects in which the big cities excel, but when it comes to the matter of low temperatures, the smaller cities and villages can "beat 'em to a frazzle" every time and not half try.

Who would have thought a score of years ago that John D. Rockefeller would be fighting for the purity of business methods and that the world would be commending him for so doing? It rather goes to show how hastily and erroneously the oil king of twenty years ago was judged.

Last week's storm covered northern and central Italy with a heavy blanket of snow; Paris enjoyed ice skating for the first time in seventeen years; Germany was snow bound for forty-eight hours; three persons were frozen to death in Belgium and fifteen-foot snowdrifts were reported by Swedon. It's not exactly what might be termed good advertising for tourist trips through Europe.

Two more London streets have been blown up as a result of the breaking of gas mains in the heart of the city. As a safety first measure, it might be good business for the British metropolis to go back to horsedrawn vehicles and minimize the vibration of traffic to the utmost.

Unlike most horrors, in which the toll of dead dwindles as the days pass, that in Venezuela which destroyed the 400-year-old city of Cumana continues to grow. Almost a hundred dead and over 800 injured have already been taken from the ruins of the city and it is expected that the list of the earthquake's victims will continue to grow, as the rescue workers have far from covered all the city.

Highest Scenic Motor Road.

From Denver came the announcement, last week, that the Harding Memorial highway to the summit of Mt. Evans, the towering, snow-capped peak fifty miles beyond and almost directly west of that city, will be completed the coming summer. This was assured when the 1929 state highway budget including $35,000 for the completion of the roadway was adopted by the Colorado advisory board. The highway has already been constructed as far as Summit lake, the altitude of which is 12,740 feet, and when the remaining five miles have been completed at an approximate grade of 300 feet to the mile it will overtop the famous Pike's Peak road, which has an extreme altitude of 14,110 feet, by ninety feet and be the highest scenic motor road in the United States and very probably the highest in the world.

The view from the peak of Mt. Evans is said to be one of the finest known to man, and from top to bottom the winding roadway, which will be thoroughly safe and accessible, will offer a succession of beautiful scenes. It is planned to level off a space at the top for parking automobiles and a sheltered lookout is to be erected.

The Harding Memorial highway, says the announcement, is one of the major undertakings Colorado has sponsored to make the Rocky mountains available to the world.

If Colorado can thus do honor to the memory of the late president, how can his own home state do less? The Colorado highway is not only being constructed as a memorial to the late President Harding, but it is also being so marked. Here through Ohio we have a great highway named after him, but it is not so designated. In fact, it is marked only by route number, and there is nothing to show that it ever bore other designation. Why should it not be marked to show its name and be made known to travelers for what it is, the one great highway from coast to coast? Ohio can not well afford to refuse this recognition to a former son which a far-away state voluntarily offers.

Are You Eating Butter, or What?

Those patronizing first-class hotels and restaurants no doubt have assumed, if they have given the matter consideration at all, that they were being served butter at their meals. Possibly they have been so served, and possibly they haven't. The thing is open to doubt, if what representatives of the dairy farmers of the land told the rules committee of the lower house of congress, a few days ago, may be credited.

The members of the committee were told that such is the latest triumph of scientific synthesis that what is taken for butter in many restaurants, including some of the most exclusive cafes and hotels, is nothing but cocoanut oil, peanut oil, and fish oil, emulsified and solidified into the consistency of butter, and given a beautiful golden dairy butter color by the use of annetto dye, which is secured from the seeds of a tropical tree. "It looks like butter," the members of the committee were told, "it smells like butter, but it isn't butter."

If the scientists have turned out something that looks like butter, smells like butter and, presumably, tastes like butter, and there are no injuries ingredients in it, one might ask: "What's the difference?" That is, one not a dairy farmer might so ask. The dairy farmer isn't looking at the proposition from the consumer's viewpoint, but rather from his own. His view is that, if the synthetic butter is permitted to compete with the product of the cow, the time is not far away when the cow will become as rare as the dodo, which is generally understood to have become extinct.

The cause of the grief of the dairy people is that the oleomargarine law of 1886, designed to put a crimp in the sale of colored margarines which were threatening the butter interests, does not cover the new product. At that time butter was only about one-third the price it is now, and the tax of ten cents a pound brought the price of colored margarines—the tax on the uncolored was but a quarter of a cent a pound—so near that of the genuine article that people were willing to pay the extra difference in cost and purchase butter. With butter costing what it does now, the makers of synthetic butter can well afford to pay the ten-cent tax and yet sell their product away below the cost of real butter.

But this isn't the worst of the situation, as the dairy people see it. The new substitutes for butter have been classed by the federal food authorities as "cooking compounds." Hence, not being classed as oleomargarine, these cooking compounds may be colored and sold as butter substitutes without the payment of any tax.

And here we have another of the long list of problems which have come from the farm. The farmers engaged in dairying want protection. And the farmer raising peanuts comes back and asks why the dairy people should be protected at his expense. And so does the man who sells cocoanuts. And the fish off people ask: "Why show such favoritism as the dairy people ask?" And all those who produce the chief raw materials going into the "cooking compounds" charge that the bill reported for passage by the agricultural committee of the house is simply a move by the dairy and oleo interests combined to stifle competition.

And there may be something in the charge. In this old world of ours, there's a heap of selfishness.

A Philadelphia clergyman is suing a former New York actress, thrice divorced, for breach of promise. He probably hasn't thought of the possible alimony he might have had to pay.

The forest service of the federal department of agriculture announces that 1,500,000 cords of pulpwood can be produced yearly in perpetuity in Alaska. Newspaper publishers will be able to read that without shedding even so much as a suspicion of a tear.

Despite her long years of service the Mauretania last week broke her own record from New York to Plymouth by two hours and two minutes, her time being four days, nineteen hours and fifty-five minutes. The speed freak of the Atlantic is still in a class by herself.

Attorney Wilson, of New York City, testified in the trial of his big game huntress wife that he honestly believed that she got excited when she saw him pick up a heavy paperweight and in her excitement shot him twice accidentally. Let's see. Was it the late King Edward VII, who, when Prince of Wales, remarked that one often is compelled to lie like a gentleman?

And now Michigan has a father of five as well as a mother of four under life sentence in the state penitentiary for a liquor law violation which was a fourth offense. Some of our laws are fearfully and awfully constructed.

The elder Rockefeller having taken over the campaign against Colonel Stewart while the younger Rockefeller is in Egypt, it's decidedly interesting to observe the different methods pursued by the two. The younger man's may have been more in accord with the doctrine of moral force, but the way the elder has done about the thing is a sight more likable to bring home the bacon.

Two young lovers of Wheeling, West Virginia, were found frozen to death in their parked car, having been overcome by monoxide gas generated by the motor. After all is said, the old-fashioned front parlor with lights turned low had its merits.

A Portuguese sea captain has been arrested, at Brunswick, Georgia, charged with smuggling aliens into this country, at prices ranging from $400 to $1,000 a head, in cargoes of salt. Possibly he used the salt to keep them from going bad on the way over.

THE HAPPY WARBLER.

Nothing So Dreary as Monotony.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Only a few weeks ago the world was enjoying the holiday season. Perhaps the members of the families who pay the bills are less enthusiastic just now about the holiday season than they were on Christmas morning. But they'll be happy again when another Christmas rolls around.

The fact is, we need diversion. We need a change from the ordinary routine of life. Indeed, we need frequent changes. I say in all reverence, that the Sabbath has a significance beyond the religious one. It is a day of diversion.

Of course, I do not mean by this that it need be made a day of celebration and riotous living. That is not the sort of diversion I have in mind. But it is intended to be a day different from the other six days. It should be a day of relief from the monotony of existence.

I can not speak too strongly about the need for diversion. It is absolutely essential to make provision for regular and frequent changes from the routine of life, no matter how agreeable that routine may be.

There is nothing so depressing, so nerve-wearing, so temper-breaking and so deadly as the steady grind of existence. The best machine in the world must have its periods of overhauling. Few engines ever made could run from New York to San Francisco without stopping. Overhauling, oiling, fueling and repairing are necessary. The only safe way to run the engine is to have periods and places for regular stops.

Certainly this is the case with the human machine. Not alone does the body require these periods of rest, but the brain and nervous system demand them.

I have seen many a friend of mine grow stale by too close application to his work. It is indeed true that "All work and no play make Jack a dull boy."

What are you doing to vary the monotony of your life? Do you go out to lunch with a friend occasionally? Do you take a walk in a new part of town? Do you walk in the woods or go into the attic to see how things are there? When did you last go to the theater or a movie? Do you ever hear a preacher other than your own? How many times a month do you taste other people's food?

If you are to be alert, energetic, enthusiastic, abounding in health and vigor, you must have diversion. You must have a change of thought and scene. These things are essential to your good health and long life.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

M. R. Q.—What do you advise for burning of the bottom of the feet?

2.—I have yellow spots before my eyes—they are not sore and the vision is perfect—what would you advise?

A.—Try bathing the feet in warm water to which a little powdered alum has been added. Frequent changing of the stockings and shoes, the latter being properly fitted should bring about relief. The circulation might also be at fault.

2.—Probably due to biliousness. Correct your diet cutting down on sugars and rich heavy foods and keep your system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

• • •

L. M. Q.—What would cause palpitation of the heart, causing trembling, and swelling of the ankles? Could these symptoms be caused by some thyroid action?

A.—Possibly, although the heart may be responsible. Careful examination will locate the exact source and then definite treatment can be advised.

• • •

S. S. Q.—What will improve the growth of my hair?

2.—What is the cause of a bald spot on a young person's head. Would diseased tonsils be responsible in any way?

3.—What will clear up constipation?

A.—Careful shampooing and rinsing and the use of a good hair tonic.

2.—May be due to the general health, this is a most important factor in the condition of both hair and skin. Improve your health and keep the scalp immaculately clean.

3.—Watch your diet and take all the outdoor exercise possible. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

• • •

C. G. Q.—What causes my heart to flutter and at times to skip a beat—I am troubled with indigestion and nervousness?

A.—Both conditions you mention would be apt to cause the heart symptom. Correct your diet and build up your general health—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1929, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Editorial Opinion.

EUROPE'S POWDER BARREL.

It savors of the ironical that on the very day President Coolidge signed the document attesting American ratification of the Kellogg pact the cables brought news from Europe's ever-smoldering powder barrel. The news concerns the new "Alsace-Lorraine" which the peace of Versailles set up when it allocated the former Prussian province of Posen to the newly-created state of Poland. In particular, the information relates to Germany's well known, though not officially acknowledged, determination not to permit "the Polish corridor" permanently to cut off East Prussia from the rest of the Reich.

The light has been suddenly and sensationally turned on the German-Polish situation by disclosures in the English Review of Reviews. A day or two ago that magazine published a secret memorandum of General Groener, the German minister of defense. It was prepared in November for the confidential use of members of the German cabinet, influential Reichstag deputies and representatives of the German federal states. The memorandum exposes in detail the Reich's extensive plans for a war of defense against Poland. Its outstanding feature is an outline of military tactics designed to keep the Poles from taking more of Upper Silesian territory or a portion of East Prussia.

Although Poland and the Reich are land neighbors, the Groener scheme contemplates German naval operations against the Poles. Germany, above all, it is pointed out, must take such measures as will enable her to combat the danger she would face if Poland, having attacked, were to throw troops into the corridor and thus detach the easternmost territory from the remainder of the Reich.

Germany's only means of communication with an East Prussia thus cut off would be by sea. To maintain it, General Groener's strategic plan sets forth, Germany must possess a larger fleet than Poland. Superiority at sea now rests with the Reich, but France is Poland's ally, and a French fleet suddenly rushed to the Baltic would promptly transfer the advantage to Germany's foes. The Germans must, therefore, proceed to construct a navy which will enable them to hold the Skagerrak in any emergency. Otherwise, General Groener's memorandum argues, the Polish menace can never be effectually met.

Far from proving the usefulness of such covenants as the Kellogg pact, the German-Polish situation vindicates their grim necessity. Both Germany and Poland are signatories to the pact. They have pledged themselves to renounce war as an instrument of national policy. The General Groeners and other hotspurs in both countries to the contrary notwithstanding, the world must continue to persuade itself that the Polish corridor will not be permitted to plunge Europe into the holocaust of another war.—Washington Star.

FOR A GOOD PURPOSE.

Senate mill, No. 52, introduced by Mr. Marshall of Cleveland, deserves some prominence and, we believe, passage by the legislature.

It would bring salary buying concerns under the provisions of the Lloyd act, which regulates chattel loan companies and limits interest to three per cent. a month, or thirty-six per cent. a year, which seems a mighty liberal rate even on the smallest loans.

The salary loan boys have evaded the laws regulating loan concerns by juggling the names of things. They don't loan money, they buy salaries. They don't charge interest, they collect discounts. And so on.

Whatever they do, here is an example of how their system works: In 1925 a railroad man borrowed $70 from a salary-buying loan shark. After paying $500 in what the borrower calls interest and the loaning concern calls something else, the borrower still owes $90.

Once in the clutches of these salary buyers, the luckless employe usually keeps on paying through fear that a garnishee of his wages will mean the loss of his job. Thus do the rules of railroads and some industrial plants, aimed to keep their employes from contracting debts they can't pay, play into the hands of the salary buyers.

Within the last few months the common pleas courts of Franklin county have issued about 400 temporary injunctions forbidding the salary buyers from collecting further from their victims.

After granting a batch of these injunctions, Judge Dana Reynolds said: "It is almost inconceivable that such a condition exists, that the companies exact such a terrible toll from the working classes. It appears to be blood money that the borrowers paid. The rate of interest is far beyond the legal rate."

But the only relief the court could afford was to enjoin specific collections, to help individuals out of the clutches of the sharks.

More law is needed to put a stop to the whole unsavory business of bleeding those who may be forced by circumstances into the hands of these money lenders.

Senate bill, No. 52 may not go far enough, but it is a step in the right direction and would prevent such outrages as were recorded in common pleas court when injunctions against the salary-buying concerns were granted.—Columbus Citizen.

McIntyre on Vacation.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

At Sea, Jan. 21—Just before starting with my wife, mother-in-law and dog to the pier to embark in the Ile de France for a short trip abroad, a slick gentleman tricked me into stopping on the way to make a movie-tone talk. They ran suddenly out of celebrities and decided to use me for one.

They'll be more careful after this. I not only gummed up a couple of reels trying to say "recalcitrant," but stood in the wrong spot twice and, blinded by the lights, was only saved from breaking my neck down an elevator shaft by the quick yank of a workman. And what he said!

So I was in no mood for a fidgety ocean. We had scarcely lifted anchor until it snapped into its dance—not a soft shoe affair but one of those old-fashioned hoe-downs. In such trying moments, with doors slamming and port holes closing, one needs most of all a symbol of courage.

I rang for the steward. I needed nothing, but just wanted to see him shrug his shoulders and hear him say: "It is nothing, monsieur!" He turned out to be one of those plump, blonde, wine-cheeked Frenchmen with violet eyes and a thin piping tenor. A lot of help.

When he spoke I thought he had stepped on a kitten. He kept watching the door and I made up my mind if he made a dash to trip him. He would not beat me to a lifeboat. And then, like dawn in the movies, came the calm. There is only one interesting ocean trip and that is the first. Take it from one on his sixteenth crossing.

The rest have a rubber stamp monotony—the same tweedy pipe smokers, giggly flappers and lounging-room bores. The minute you realize there is no turning back you would give your hope of heaven to be home. But folk will be ridiculous and go abroad, so here we are.

It is amusing to watch people creep out on deck following a storm. Their manner is so nonchalant—chirping like sparrows after a sudden shower. The seasoned voyageur knows they likely donned life belts and sat about in their cabins in white-faced terror while the waves rolled high. How I know!

• • •

There are two heroes aboard with their breasts cluttered with so many medals Mr. Sousa would look naked. Adulation is always dangerous, and these lads are no exceptions. They came aboard with a heavy list and have been that way ever since. We are not indulgent with heroes any more. There are too many, and we want them sober. Either that or they must hide their medals. An East Indian prince, who looks like Otis Skinner, wearing a white robe and a diamond bracelet on each wrist, is in the cabin next door. I wonder if he tells fortunes.

• • •

Nothing is quite so "mental" as sea sickness. In the Olympic one time I saw a man deliberately talk another into it. The victim was boasting of many crossings made without a tremor and his friend winked at the group about the table. I don't know what he said, but when I passed by later everybody was convulsed with laughter and the immune fellow was galloping for the rail—the gray of a flounder's belly. And he did not show himself again.

• • •

Old seagoing captains many years at the wheel are never entirely free from twinges of seasickness. And there are some people who actually cross the ocean solely to be ill. They believe it is a sort of panacea. I prefer castor oil raw.

• • •

As one who has had his share of mal-de-mer, one thing is certain. Food never tastes so good as after an attack. The illness vanishes ps-s-s-st—like that. One moment you think you are dying and hope you are, the next you are aching to tear into a three-inch steak with all the trimmings. There are no regrets either when you look back on "sickiest" of all sickness. You do not mind having been a victim at all. If that were not true, liners would go into bankruptcy.

• • •

The liveliest thing on the ship during the sway of the drunken wind was my pooch. As the plunging liner poised in mid air and shivered down, he ran joyously in circles, barking his head off. A wan and annoyed gent next door rapped twice, but he need not have been so fussy. He was making funny noises himself. Perhaps another way of making whoopee.—Copyright, 1929, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Bubbles.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Two sharply opposed views of human l have been set forth coincident with the m ing of the American association in New Y One of them is Dr. Fisk's idea that man not live as long as he could, or, perhaps, he should; the other is Sir Arthur Keith's t tum that we ought to be through with l at fifty years at the latest, and that man s been unduly prolonging his individual ex tence. Sir Arthur avers that men have do all their best work by the time they are for five or fifty. Sir Arthur himself has pass those ripe times of life, and, as he seems promising example of human ability, perha in the future he may personally add to t abundant historical evidence that often t greatest things that men do are done after sometimes long after—the first half centu of life.

Human lives may be likened to stea bubbles. Men are more like bubbles th they suspect. You put a pot of water on t fire. If you could use a transparent vess the phenomena to be mentioned would more plainly seen.

As the bottom gets warm, a layer of f shining little bubbles appears covering it. is like nature preparing to people the ear with living inhabitants. The bubbles increa in number and size and begin to rise throu the liquid. Let us liken each bubble to human being just starting his life career.

The bubbles increase in number and size, and when they arrive at the top of t water they disappear by bursting into stea It is the end of their individual life. Not ing is left of them, but some curls of vap Shall we liken that to the immaterial part man, set free at the death of the body?

If the boiling is not violent, but only j sufficient to keep the water in the pot full with rising bubbles, you may see that th generally increase in magnitude up to a ce tain general limit. I have seen this bea tifully in a warm spring in Yellowstone pa where huge bubbles, swelling as they eme out of the depths and glittering like polis silver balls, come majestically to the surf and burst in the air—great souls explodi into immortality!

If the heat is moderate the speed ascension of the bubbles is moderate al and so their life is prolonged, while, at t same time, the birth of new bubbles is strained and the crowding is less than whe a greater degree of heat rapidly produc thronging masses which rise swiftly to t top and burst by wholesale into steam aft very brief periods of individual existence.

Is this the state of affairs that would r sult from Sir Arthur Keith's proposed sho ening of human life? Such shortening woul surely be attended by an increase of aggr gate numbers. Every physiological functi would be accelerated in a short, hot life. B would that be to the advantage of the h tellectual functions? The ancients who live by the maxim, "a sound mind in a sou body," did not think that the mere physic disabilities of age should be regarded setting a time limit for an active mind. R call what Plato tells of Sophocles who, whe asked in his age how he felt about life, r plied: "Hush, if you please. To my gre delight I have escaped from it, and feel If I had escaped a frantic and savage master. Sophocles lived to be eighty-seven. He w made a general at fifty-five. He wrote mo than a hundred dramas in the course of h life, and it has been said that "they all b long to the period of his maturity," sin "he had no decline." It seems certain th if the span of life were reduced to fifty year the output of genius would be seriously cu tailed.

The fact is that, as the world goes now, t average length of life seems to be fairly we adjusted to its conditions. The pot is boi ing at a balanced rate; the bubbles last lon enough to be well formed, and the crowdin near the top is not serious.—Copyright, 192 International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

There is a little poem by Robert Lou Stevenson in "The Child's Garden of Vers which relates the ambition of a little lad t become the lamplighter of the village.

"But I, when I am grown
And can choose what I will do,
Oh, Leerie, I'll go 'round at night
And light the lamps with you."

It is just the prattling fancy of a chil Some of us wanted to be engineers and coach men, conductors in uniforms and policemen But something deeper than fancy is touche by the little boy who wanted to go 'roun with Leerie and light the lamps at night.

The world is dark in many places. It needs to be set aglow with cheer. So many hearts need the rays of understanding; so many lives need the sunlight of kindliness It has been said "let not your hearts be troubled." But sometimes, for a little while, hearts are troubled. Even the home town seems a desolate place. It's a great thing to light the lamps for some one in the dark We do not need a laboratory demonstration to prove that faith brings reward. Happiness comes again, and finally peace.

Shall we think, with the little chap who waited with his face pressed against the window pane—

"When I can choose what I will do,
Oh, Leerie, I'll go 'round at night

• • •

Many people who go about blurting out the truth about themselves or other people might better be silent. All they do is to make somebody else miserable, to no purpose. Silence is often much better than the spoken truth. But the habit of not telling the truth when speech is demanded is even more indefensible than talking too much. When our word is no longer believed we are through as far as character, reputation, standing, or influence is concerned. Let's be careful about saying that somebody can not be depended on to speak the truth. It is a deadly charge. There are doubtless "white lies" which lubricate the relations between people. There always have been and always will be. But in an issue of importance there is no sound middle course. Stalling is no part of honesty. It is either silence or truth.

J. G. MILLER DIES AT COUNTRY HOME

Retired Farmer Succumbs at Age of 78; Funeral To Be Wednesday

John George Miller, 78, died at his home four miles southeast of Marion on the Canaan rd., at 5 o'clock this morning following an illness of two weeks. Death was due to bronchial trouble.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Kauffman-Queen funeral home, East Center st., with the Rev. S. H. Mellenbrunner in charge. Interment will be in Marion cemetery.

Mr. Miller, a retired farmer, had lived in Marion county since he was 19 years of age, coming here at that time from Germany. He was born in Wurtemburg, Germany, March 1, 1851. He was married in Marion county June 7, 1875, to Miss Catherine Schwartz, who died 41 years ago.

Surviving Mr. Miller are two sons, John and George, both of Marion, R. F. D. No. 1.

BOY SCOUTS GIVE ROTARY CLUB PLAY

Provide Luncheon Program Feature Today at Hotel Harding

A one-act playlet entitled "Maybe You Are," was presented today noon before members of the Marion Rotary club at the weekly noonday luncheon of the club at Hotel Harding.

The play was in charge of Walter Brown, Boy Scout executive, assisted by several Marion scouts. The play had been rewritten for the local club, the scenes being laid in the library of a successful manufacturer.

The cast included Hayes Newby, Robert Glosser, Lendal Layman, Bob Clevenger and Herman Rhu, Jr.

Several members of the local club expressed their intentions of attending the inter-city meeting which will be held at the Elks club in Bucyrus the night of Jan. 20.

It has been estimated that 41,000,000 persons in the United States could listen in on nationwide radio broadcasting if all their sets were in use at the same time.

"EXCEEDING SMALL" OPENS IN NEW YORK

Story of Gert and Ed, Who Never Got "Breaks"

BY DAVID P. SENTNER
Copyright by I. N. S. 1929

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—All Gert and Ed wanted was a little piece of the moon, just enough to nibble out some happiness.

But the mills of the Gods denied the modest desires of these children of the lower middle class.

"Exceeding Small," by Caroline Francke, presented by The Actors theater, is a play with a bitter question mark. And the twists and quirks of fate go unanswered.

• • •

All Gert and Ed wanted was a job, three meals and a chance to live and love together.

"Try and get it," sums up Ed's case against the Bag Layout.

Life, to Ed, was simply a gigantic Installment Plan. They were always making you pay.

Gert and Ed were married but 10 days after it was discovered Ed had heart trouble and could not possibly live more than a few years and that only if he could rest and have expert attention.

Ed has no money. Ed cannot continue his heavy work as shipping clerk. Yet he has no qualifications for any other sort of employment.

• • •

Gert does not wish to live if Ed cannot.

"Why not die together?" suggests Gert.

"Are you game, kid?" says Ed. "Why not," says Gert.

So the windows are closed tight in their hutch of an apartment and the gas turned on. It is not a nice finish but is somewhat of a sweeter scene than it sounds. For Gert and Ed lie in each other's arms, apparently happily, as their souls pass over the land reported to be without rent problems, grocery bills and physical infirmities.

• • •

Gert and Ed are living types from our dancehalls, poolrooms and chop suey parlors. Their flu is simple and bolsterous, washed down with quantities of synthetic gin.

And their love is without sophistication, direct as the flight of a bird to its mate.

• • •

Ruth Easton, as Gert, has the Third Avenue swagger down pat. Eric Dressler, the "boy friend," also knows his "dese" and "dats."

"Exceedingly Small" is a difficult play "to put over." It caused extreme reactions, one auditor believing it to be one of the finest plays ever produced, another believing it to be the very worst.

Those who disliked the production failed to recognize the characters as youngsters who swing on their very gates. However, it takes a strong theatrical digestion to swallow such a gruesome ending. The double suicide scene made it just that from a box office view.

• • •

What a Future

"Tomorrow," labeled a play of the future, turns out to be a warning against old age.

It seems that in about thirty or forty years, we folks will be serving a half dozen pills for Christmas dinner, making an awful draught from leaving our windows open for air flivvers, and televisioning right through the Wall of China so that our private life will be no more safe than that of Helen of Troy.

The actors in "Tomorrow" wore wireless telephones on their wrists, and by talking through their hats or wrists, doors unlatched themselves, beds unbedded themselves, tables untabled themselves, and rooms did a leapskip-and-jump right before your very eyes. It was considerable more of a strain than an attack of that native disease, the heebie-geebies.

• • •

The big machine shop scene was the chase in the clouds of an clinging couple. It was a case of one helo after another. It looked to me like a gang of angels getting inflamted into some Heavenly Fraternity—but they told me, no, the idea was scientific.

The play needs to have its wheels speeded up, lightened with a new plot, and oiled with the sparkle of dialogue.

As it stands now, "Tomorrow" reminds me of kicking a tin can around the interior of a war tank, if you understand scientific talk.

ILLNESS FATAL TO MARTEL RESIDENT

Arrange Rites for Mrs. Thomas Weidemaier, Former School Teacher

MARTEL, Jan. 21—Mrs. Dimmie Watts Weidemaier, wife of Thomas Weidemaier, died at 7:30 Saturday night following a two-weeks illness of paralysis.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the home with continued services at 2 o'clock at the M. E. church here. The Rev. John Jones, of Columbus, former pastor, will conduct the services.

Mrs. Weidemaier was born Oct. 10, 1872, in Tully township, Marion county. She attended school at School No. 16, and later took a course at Iberia college. Before her marriage, to Mr. Weidemaier Oct. 5, 1898, Mrs. Weidemaier was a teacher in the school at Martel. She was an active member of the M. E. church and a teacher of the Golden Rule Sunday school class.

Surviving with the husband are one daughter, Mrs. George Williams, of Cleveland, two nieces, Ruth Christman and Naomi Newman, and three nephews, Howard Newman and Paul and Edgar Christman.

VISITORS IN SOUTH

Marionites Included in List of 5,000 Ohioans at St. Petersburg

Marion is well represented among the 5,000 Ohioans who are helping swell the record breaking number of "Sun Worshipers" sojourning at St. Petersburg, Fla., this season, according to a news report from there today.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brumbaugh, East Center st., have returned for their sixth visit. They made the trip south by motor.

S. W. Gruber, East Center st., recently arrived in St. Petersburg, where he is enjoying his second season.

Registered at the Ponce-de-Leon are Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Honefanger, South State st., who are visiting there for their second winter.

Gordon Larkin, Mary st., is there for his first season, and is living at 510 4th av. North.

Hermit Maxwell, North Seffner av., recently arrived and is registered at the St. Petersburg Y. M. C. A.

Among those registered at the Hotel Poinsettia is Mrs. Elizabeth Rizer, who has returned for her eleventh winter season.

Prominent persons visiting the city this season include Miss Florence Trumbull, fiancee of John Coolidge, who is there with her father, Gov. John Trumbull, of Connecticut. President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, and president-elect and Mrs. Herbert Hoover will make a brief visit there in the near future, the report states.

Hydroelectric development in New Zealand is increasing each year.

If I Were A Man

I WOULDN'T be a tightwad.

I wouldn't hold on to every penny so closely that it squealed, and never spend more than the least amount possible without a desperate struggle. I wouldn't let the other fellow always beat me to the check. When I went to see a girl I wouldn't take her a half-pound box of candy.

I wouldn't pretend that I didn't care for the theater and suggest the movies instead, just because I was too mean to part with the price of theater tickets. I wouldn't take her into a drugstore and ask if she'd like "something to drink," forestalling the possible order of the nut sundae or banana split that would cost a little more.

If I could afford a taxi, I wouldn't afflict a girl with a tedious ride in the trolley, or subway, and if I sent her flowers I wouldn't buy them on the street, partly wilted, but cheaper by one-half. If I couldn't bear to do things right, I wouldn't do them at all.

Nobody loves a tightwad.

If I Were A Girl

I WOULDN'T gossip.

There may be a few small-minded men who enjoy hearing all the latest "dirt" about the crowd, but the average man doesn't like it.

The girl whose idea of entertaining the boy friend is to dish out gossip, changes boy friends pretty often, you may have observed. "For," says the boy friend, "if that's the kind of girl she is, my personal life will probably be put on the mat tomorrow for some one else's edification. I'd better grab by hat and run"——and he does.

And what is more, he is bored. He is glad to escape from such small chatter. What does he care if the girl friend's boss was seen having lunch with a very attractive lady—who was not his wife? It's not his business.

And he is supposed to be all agog with interest because the girl friend's girl friend has just had a spat with her boy friend? He doesn't care at all.

A girl's got to have a better line than gossip to hold a man's interest.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Woman's Ruling Passion

JUST at this moment, a lot of women are making noble New Year's resolutions—for their husbands!

In the average man's secret opinion, woman's ruling passion is her passion for making a man "give up" things.

Somehow, a woman is ALWAYS asking a man to "give up" something—a habit, an extravagance, a weakness, a pastime—or another woman!

Before marriage, she doesn't believe he loves her unless he is "sacrificing" something for her sake. And after marriage, she doesn't think she is doing her duty unless she is making him sacrifice something "for his OWN sake."

Even while she is telling him how wonderful he is, she is secretly planning to make him over into a "better man." That's being a "good influence."

She spends most of the courtship urging him to "give up" smoking so much, or to shave off his little pet mustache, or to give up his other women friends, or his wild sing parties—anything just so it's something he LIKES! Everything a man likes is bad for him!

And after marriage, she starts right in on his diet, his clothes, his daily habits and his secret indulgences.

She persuades him to give up his low soft collars and his wild neckties, and wear snappy stiff collars and conservative haberdashery; to wear suspenders, if he prefers a belt—or a belt, if he prefers suspenders; and to part his hair on the side, if it's parted in the middle—or vice versa.

She fondly urges him to give up eating rare roast beef and baked potatoes, which he enjoys, and to begin eating spinach and carrots, which he detests.

She tries to take away his second cup of coffee, and to substitute cereal with bran for his daily waffles and sausage.

She begs him to give up swearing, for the good of his soul, and to give up singing in his morning bath for the sake of the neighbors.

She urges him to give up reading in bed at night and put out the light; to give up his Saturday afternoon golf and stay home and wash the car; and to give up his Sunday morning beauty sleep and go to church.

In short, she is never happy unless she is "improving" him! And, as man that is born of woman is full of sins and weakness, it's a grand and glorious life-work! There is ALWAYS room for improvement! And every day is New Year's Day for him! He's always GOING to "give up" something!

The Fight on Fat
now world-wide and effective

The scientific world has long been conducting an effective war on fat. A major cause of excess fat has been found in a defective gland. That gland largely controls nutrition. When that gland is under-active, too much food goes to fat. The modern method of treatment aims to correct that deficiency.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for over 20 years—millions of boxes of them. They have told the results to others—the loss in weight, the gain in health and vigor. Thus the use has grown and grown. In the past year alone it has doubled.

The results are seen in every circle. Slender figures are the rule now. Excess fat is nowhere near so common as it was.

Marmola is not secret. Every box contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. The prescription was perfected by a learned physician in a famous medical laboratory.

No hard work, no starvation is required, though moderation helps. One simply takes four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

Try this method which has brought such results to so many. You owe that to yourself if you are over-fat. Beauty and youth, health and vigor all demand it. Don't wait longer. Get Marmola now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

FIND "FRIEND IN NEED"

Mother and Daughter Praise Vegetable Compound

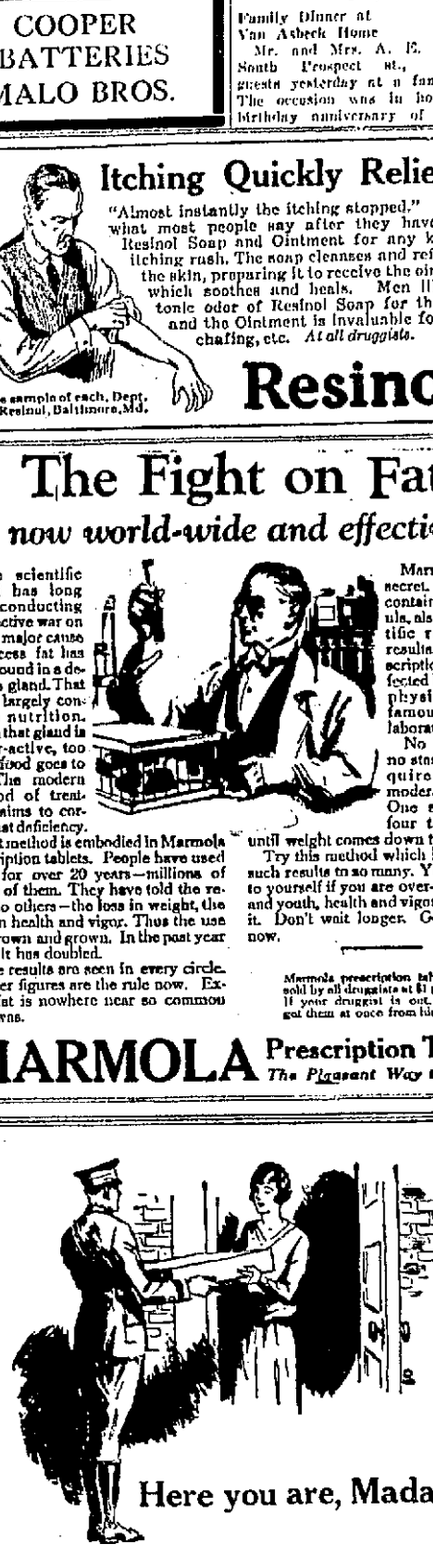
Johnson City, N. Y.—"My daughter was only 20 years old, but for two years she worked in misery. She was all run-down, nervous, had aches and pains and no appetite. I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results so she decided to try it. Before she had taken two bottles her appetite was better, she was more cheerful and was able to work. I cannot praise your medicine too highly. It is wonderful for mothers and for daughters. It's surely 'a friend in need.'"—Mrs. L. E. Hall, 225 Floral Avenue, Johnson City, N. Y.

The old Story

The girl whose menstrual periods ever cause a broken date, simply hasn't heard about Midol. Menstruation is natural. But the pain is not!

Midol will end menstrual pains in five to seven minutes.

This merciful discovery of the specialist is not a narcotic. It does nothing to hinder or hasten the process of menstruation. But it does end the painful part; if you anticipate your time the expected pain will not appear at all. Tiny tablets, in convenient little aluminum case, fifty cents at any drugstore. It is folly to suffer.—Adv.



Here you are, Madam!

The voice without a cold

Let Daisy tell you: it's the voice without a cold that is the voice with a smile. And this is how she avoids the sniffles, fever, and illness which make others 'phone that they won't be down to work.

Right after every exposure, if she feels shivery, or has wet her feet, or gets that warning tickle in her throat or nose, she takes GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. She doesn't wait; not Daisy. She has learned to carry the handy white box in her purse for just such emergencies—and for headaches, too. So she nips the cold while it merely threatens, and avoids grip and flu and other serious ills which often begin with a cold.

Remember, there is only one BROMO QUININE. So it is a wise precaution to emphasize GROVE'S, when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

A Story of Big Business and the Wiles of Women

BY ARNOLD BENNETT

He affected to be insusceptible to flattery, but he was flattered. Harriet was confirmed in her belief that there exists on earth no man who cannot be flattered by an attractive woman. She felt his admiration descending upon her. Therefore she was at ease and capable of concealing anything and everything except a delicious tendency toward impudence. She went on:

Newspaper proprietor, then, if an engineer's too good for you! Capitalist! Millionaire! Yes, now I recognize it from your portrait—it's always appearing in your own newspapers, isn't it?'

His lordship laughed again, but not quite so naturally as before. She suspected that it might be perilous to affront him, but she had a certain taste for peril, and when his lordship asked her to sit down she sat down with gusto, with excited anticipation and with a full sense of the liveliness of life and with a queer satisfaction that the door was shut and he had him and to herself.

And all the time her brain repeated monotonously: "Imagine him being on board! Imagine seeing him here."

Lord Furber said:

'I'm sorry we've got carried off like this from your hotel.'

'And from my luggage too,' Harriet put in.

'Your luggage, too,' he concurred. 'I shouldn't have minded so much if they'd carried off my luggage with me. I might have rather liked being carried off if only I'd had my luggage.'

'Oversight!'

'What was an oversight? Carrying me off or forgetting my luggage?'

I apologize,' said Lord Furber, not answering her question. 'I should have thought it was Count Veruda's place to apologize. The yacht's his.'

'Who told ye that?'

He did.'

'Well I lent him the yacht for the evening. She isn't his and never was. I own her and I run her, and nobody else does. And she's more expensive than 10 women.'

Majdie had indeed mentioned a yacht, but very casually as being a matter in which she herself felt no personal interest, she had not even given its name.

'Then the count is a liar,' she said.

'Yes,' Lord Furber admitted judicially. 'Yes I reckon he is. But I'm bound to say he asked my permission first and I gave it.'

'Asked your permission?'

'Veruda's my secretary.'

'One of them,' corrected Harriet quickly, recalling what another secretary had said.

'One of 'em. But my favorite. I picked him up because of his picturesqueness. He amuses me. He keeps me interested.'

I always felt the count was an adventurer. And yet he looks like a rich man.'

'Not he! He looks like the popular notion of a rich man. I look like a rich man and I am rich—very rich.' Lord Furber laughed, as if to himself. 'Now, Miss Perkins, what do you want me to do?'

'About what?'

'About yourself.'

'Turn back at once and put me ashore where I started from.'

'Certainly. Like a shot—if you insist. But listen now; wouldn't it meet the case if I wirelessed the Splendide to have your luggage sent on by motor to the next port we call at?'

'Where's that?'

'Depends.'

'On what?'

'Circumstances.'

'And my hotel bill?'

'Oh! We could fix that.'

'And my clothes in the meantime? I haven't a thing except what I'm in. And even you can't make it perpetual evening, Lord Furber.'

'Yes, I can. We'll stay below. The curtains shan't even be opened. Breakfast by electric light. Lunch by electric light. Every meal by electric light till your luggage arrives.' * * * Of course, I admit there's your reputation to think of. But that'll be all right. You needn't worry about that.'

Miss Perkins hesitated, and then as it seemed to her, jumped into a deep river.

'Lord Furber,' said she. 'Where in heaven's name do you come from?' The challenge in her tone frightened her for a moment. But she was getting a little used to Lord Furber and after all, he was only a man like other men.

'The Five Towns.'

'You would!' she exclaimed, striking wildly out into the very middle of the river. 'And you've never really left them. And perhaps that's what's the matter with you. And what's more, you're still in the nineteenth century. You can't have looked at the calendar lately, or you wouldn't talk in that antediluvian style. Do you suppose my reputation is going to suffer because you and your secretaries and things have bungled their organization? I don't need anybody to tell me not to worry about my reputation. My reputation to think of, indeed! Have you any ladies on board? Or women servants?'

Lord Furber smiled unruffled.

'One woman. I can't travel without my chief steward—he's my butler on dry land—and he can't travel without his wife. So his wife's here.' He sighed.

'Then I'll see her. She'll arrange things for me for the night. And the yacht shall go back at once, and when I've had my sleep out you shall land me yourself at Naples.'

'But you said you would.'

'Yes, but I can't. I was hoping he'd oblige me by not insisting.'

'But I do insist.'

'I tell ye I can't do it.'

'You mean you won't.'

'Have it yer own way, then. I mean I won't.' He gave a short laugh, loud but grim.

Harriet murmured:

"Ask Me Anything"

'So now we know where we are.' She threw up her head and answered his laugh with a laugh light and negligent. But she was feeling by this time the strength of the current of the river. All Majdie's accounts of her husband's peculiarities had not prepared her for so curt a refusal. She saw in the man's eyes some hard glint of the force which had made a Lord Furber out of a working engineer.

'Ask me anything else and I'll do it.'

Then send for Count Veruda. I feel as if I could talk to him for his own good.'

'He isn't on board. He took his guests ashore and hasn't returned. * * * But you needn't be afraid.' Lord Furber added kindly, protectively.

'I'm not.'

'Are ye sure?'

'Yes, I'm sure. But you're afraid.'

'I admit it,' he indulged her. 'Have a cigarette, will ye?'

'I don't smoke,' said Harriet dryly. 'You're afraid because you're puzzled. It's my reasonableness that's puzzling you. If I'd made a scene you'd have felt safe. But now you can't make me out. I said we knew where we were. It isn't quite true. I know where I am, but you don't know where you are.'

'I've got that advantage. And I'll tell you another thing. Like all real honaires you're suspicious, and because I'm keeping calm you're suspecting all sorts of things about me.'

'For instance?'

'You're suspecting I got myself left behind on your yacht on purpose.'

'Well I was,' he said bluntly. 'But I don't now.'

'I do smoke—but only my own.'

Miss Perkins opened her bag and took out a cigarette case. Lord Furber held a lighted match.

'I'll hold it, thanks,' said Miss Perkins, and when she had lighted the cigarette she carefully dropped the match on the Persian carpet. Then she looked up at him as he stood almost over her. 'You're so delicious in nature, aren't you?'

'What do you mean?' Lord Furber spoke gruffly, and stepped back.

'Perhaps that's why I like you.'

'What do you mean?' he repeated. 'Tell me why you think I'm naive.'

'No. You might lose your temper. You haven't got much self-restraint, and I hate scenes. If I wanted a scene I should make it myself.'

'I shan't lose my temper.'

'I say you might.'

'What do you know about my temper?'

'Anybody can see you've got a temper.'

'Tell me why you think I'm naive. Tell me.' Harriet shook her head. 'Hang it all!' he went on, and threw an ash tray violently to the floor. 'Must I go on my knees to you? Tell me.'

'Sit down, then,' Harriet laughed. 'And don't jump up again.' Lord Furber sat down. Harriet could feel her heart beating. 'You're naive because you think everybody has the same kind of motives as you have yourself. You've got Machiavelli written all over your face. You love plotting and so you imagine that everybody is plotting something against you. And because you fancy you can detect scheming everywhere you think you understand human nature. You've never grown up. Perhaps that's a reason why you're rather adorable.' She deliberately dropped some ash on the Persian carpet.

A pause.

'And what plotting d'ye accuse me of being up to now?'

"Well, the whole business of the dinner was obviously a plot. There was no improvisation in it at all. It was all completely thought out beforehand. And the brains that planned it certainly didn't leave two of the guests behind by accident. Mr. Sutherland and I must have been left behind on purpose. I'm not a millionaire, but I'm not a simpleton either."

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

To Have Edith As a Week End Guest

At Lillian's diction Harry Underwood lifted one hand from the wheel and spread it toward her in an exaggerated gesture of surrender.

'Mother knows best,' he said resignedly, and sent the car speeding past a truck as if the accelerated pace held relief for him.

'Glad you realize it,' his wife laughed. 'And I'll let you off on something else some time for being good and sticking around the farmhouse while Edie's a week-end guest.'

'I'll have to be something pretty big,' Mr. Underwood grumbled. 'But maybe she can't come after all.' This with such a hopeful air that Lillian and I could not help laughing.

'With all due respect to our dear Edith,' Lillian drawled, 'there's no such luck.'

'Don't I know it!' her husband returned dolefully, and I did not try to restrain my laugh, although I felt that I was woefully deficient in the role of prospective hostess. But there was not the slightest use of dissembling with these two old friends of ours, who knew every fact of our lives, as we did theirs.

It was perhaps half an hour later that we emerged from the tunnel and were only a few minutes' run from the offices of the art magazine which Dicky had taken over through a desire to protect the investments of his friends. I fully recognized and gave due credit to the remarkable work of Edith Fairfax, who, developing an unsuspected strain of business acumen, had transformed the almost defunct periodical into a paying proposition. But the fact that she was a partner with my husband in this enterprise and that their association necessarily was a close and almost daily one had made me wish frequently that Dicky had taken his loss and never tried to put the magazine on a paying basis.

Lillian spoke abruptly when we had threaded the busy traffic lanes leading from the tunnel.

'I'm terribly thirsty, Harry,' she said, 'and I'm sure Madge is, too. Stop and get us a soda at the next clean looking place, that's a dear.'

I opened my mouth to protest that I wished nothing, then closed it again, for I guessed suddenly that the request was camouflage. Lillian does not care for sodas ordinarily but I knew that Mr. Underwood in getting them would be absent from the car for several minutes, thus giving her an opportunity to speak to me unheard by him.

'Haul you out the whole four cans,' Harry said and when three blocks farther on he drew up the car and went into a drug store Lillian turned to me and asked anxiously:

'Sure you want to do this, girl?'

I knew what she meant. Knew her theory that I should not yield to Dicky in the unreasonable demands he often made. But in this particular instance my conscience was troubling me. I really had been rather cavalier in the matter of this invitation, and I felt that I must make amends by seeing Edith personally and urging her to come to us.

'I'm sure I must do it,' I told her smiling, but she evidently interpreted my tone aright, for she merely said, 'That's that, then,' and spoke no more until we drew up in front of the building in which the offices of the art magazine are housed.

PARENTS HAPPY WHEN BABY SLEEPS SOUNDLY

Here's a way to soothe crying, wakeful babies to sleep quickly and easily. It's the way doctors endorse, and millions of mothers have proved is safe and harmless. A few drops of purely-vegetable, pleasant tasting Fletcher's Castoria, has the most fretful restless baby or child asleep in a few minutes! And for colic, constipation, colds and upset spells, there's nothing like Castoria. The Chas. H. Fletcher signature is the mark of genuine Castoria. Avoid imitations and be safe.—Adv.

HARD WATER PLUS MELO MAKES SOFT WATER

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Ring out the scum! Ring in the soft water!

Good-bye! Water need no longer be hard, even in this hard-water country. Scum need no longer form in the bathtub! Dirty rings need no longer be scrubbed from tubs, dishpans or washbasins!

Use Melo to soften hard water! It prevents the forming of the dirty ring. It makes water delightfully soft. It saves from ⅓ to ½ the amount of soap ordinarily used. It makes soap much more effective. With or without soap, water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner. Get it at your grocer's.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was the Lord's day, and I could see when I let Jubilee down out of the window with the rope in his teeth that it was going to be cool enough so the ice wouldn't melt, and warm enough so that a fella could leave his overcoat unbuttoned and catch the flue or something maybe so he could stay out of school. And after breakfast my aunt done her daily dozen and her daily good deed on my neck and face and ears, till she had got all the dirt off and had begun on me. All the little boys my aunt hasn't got are certainly lucky. No matter how big they might be when she got them I bet she would keep washing away like an all day sucker till there wouldn't be anything left of them.

When we got to Sunday school the sun was shining on the front steps and we all got on the front porch and had a lot of fun pushing each other off till Sunday school time. We were having a lot of fun and Feeble was standing with her arms around one of the posts and I went toadrst her to push her off and just as I got near to her she lifted one of her legs and put her foot against my stummick and gave me a hard enough shove to push the building over. I felt myself up against something big, and there was a grunt, and then I was over off the other side of the porch on the trampled snow and the stummick of Mrs. Shea who is very fat and works in our Sunday school, and she was red in the face.

I wanted to skin out, but I helped Mrs. Shea get up and brushed the snow off of her, and she grinned at me and said 'Boys will be boys,' and climb the steps one step at a time and waddled through the door into the Sunday school. Then we stopped pushing each other off, because we could see other folks coming. I told Feeble that I bet she aimed at Mrs. Shea, and all she done was look cross-eyed and say, "The kid's getting clever." Then we all started going into Sunday school and the Lost Boy of Tripe was ahead of Mrs. Johnston one of the teachers, but he thought Feeble was behind him, and Feeble reached out with one of her feet and hooked one of his and he stumbled and then he turned around right quick and sunk his fist up to the elbow in Mrs. Johnston's stummick. It has been a long time since I have had so much fun at Sunday school.

There was a thaw today which was Monday, and nothing happened except that tonight because of the thaw I had to sleep with a wet dog.

HEALTH AUTHORITY GIVES SEVEN WAYS TO FIGHT OFF FLU

Rules suggested by Life Extension Institute

1 Keep out of crowds all you can
2 Remove germs from hands as often as possible
3 Get plenty of rest, sleep, exercise, fresh air and nourishing food
4 Avoid exposure to chill and wet, especially when tired
5 Fortify yourself to resist the flu by having a health examination
6 If you have the real flu don't take 'home remedies'—call a doctor
7 Be careful in convalescence. It is a danger period.

"IT is wonderful never to have to worry about sickness," says Mrs. Ann M. Sava, bright-eyed mother of two ruddy-cheeked youngsters.

"We haven't had the slightest illness in our home for at least seven years and I really think that Lifebuoy deserves a good part of the credit.

"My husband first introduced Lifebuoy to me, and I fell in love with it right away; it agreed so wonderfully with my skin.

"But the big reason we all use Lifebuoy is because it gets the germs off. It's so easy for children to catch sickness from other youngsters that we'd never feel our children were safe if it weren't for Lifebuoy and its wonderful antiseptic lather."—Mrs. Ann M. Sava, 36 Hawley Avenue, Port Chester, N. Y.

Get the health soap habit!

Mrs. Sava's letter is typical of the faith millions of mothers have in Lifebuoy.

In your family, too, health protection is necessary. For hands are constantly touching things that others also have to handle—such as books, door-knobs, telephones. The Life Extension Institute lists 27 germ diseases that hands may spread. Why take chances when Lifebuoy's gentle antiseptic lather removes germs?

Adopt Lifebuoy for your whole family today—and give them added health protection—at no extra cost. You'll quickly learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant extra-clean scent which tells you it purifies and which vanishes as you rinse.

Simplified Gingerbread This Week's Prize Recipe

MIXING TIME Less Than 6 Minutes For This

Intriguingly Luscious Marshmallow Gingerbread

Mrs. Roy Johnston, a bride of a few months, seems pleased with her first attempt at Marshmallow Gingerbread.

A Far Simpler Way In Baking

If your husband has a leaning to gingerbread, try this simplified recipe. Of 272 women who tried it, 270 had perfect luck! Of the two who failed, one blamed her oven; the other a mistake in mixing. It's virtually a mistake-proof recipe.

By the development of an utterly new type of flour—Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Flour—baking has been simplified amazingly for housewives. And the cause of most baking disappointments banished.

"Kitchen-tested" means that every batch of this flour has been tested in an oven just like yours, before it goes to you. Tested for uniformity of result with home recipes.

That means Gold Medal Flour always acts the same way EVERY TIME with your recipes.

Ask your grocer for GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Flour. For perfect results, be sure and get that brand of flour before you try this recipe.

----------Cut out along this line and save----------

RECIPE . . . . Marshmallow Gingerbread

½ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup molasses, 1¾ cups GOLD MEDAL "KITCHEN-TESTED" FLOUR, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. cinnamon, 1 tsp. ginger, ½ tsp. salt, ½ cup sour milk, 3 doz. large soft marshmallows.

METHOD: 1. Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. 2. Add well beaten egg and molasses. 3. Sift flour once before measuring. 4. Mix and sift flour, soda, cinnamon, ginger and salt together and add alternately with sour milk and mix well. 5. Pour into well greased and floured pan and bake. 6. While gingerbread is still warm split it carefully into 2 layers, place about 16 marshmallows between layers. Then place about same number of marshmallows over top. 7. Return gingerbread to moderately hot oven, 400° F., until marshmallows are soft, puffy and golden brown. 8. Remove from oven and serve at once. TIME. Bake 30 minutes. TEMPERATURE 350° F., moderate oven. SIZE OF PAN: One cake pan 7 inches square.

Rev. W. E. Frampton Highly Indorses The New Remedy--Nu-Erb

Expresses Gratitude to Nu-Erb Man Who Told Him About This Wonderful Medicine—Tells How It Helped Him!

Many prominent and highly respected citizens all over the country have given high testimony to the great powers of Dr. French's Nu-Erb in overcoming suffering, but the experience given here by Rev W E Frampton, pastor of M E church of Clark, Pa, is of particular interest

"I can highly recommend Nu Erb for I have used three bottles and have been greatly improved in health Stomach and kidney troubles were at the bottom of it all and must have been the cause of rheumatism through my joints that was very painful and caused me great discomfort My liver was sluggish too and my bowels were habitually constipated

For eight or nine years I had been this way and when I was telling the Nu Erb man recently about these troubles of mine he advised me to give Nu Erb a trial This I decided to do and in a few short weeks it has helped me wonderfully My stomach gives me practically no trouble now Kidneys have been strengthened The rheumatism is practically all gone and my bowels are acting regularly My general health too has improved and I am feeling better in every way I am very glad to indorse such a medicine

REV W E FRAMPTON

How Nu-Erb Acts

Many people do not stop to realize that a lot of outward symptoms are really caused by some deeper trouble and nine times out of ten it is either constipation stomach troubles weak kidneys or a sluggish liver at the bottom of it all Like for instance foul breath that tired drowsy worn out feeling pains in the back sore muscles aching joints nervousness and rheumatism Get the vital organs working properly and these symptoms disappear

After taking Nu Erb a while you will notice the bowel action becomes easier and regular every day gas ceases to form on the stomach headaches pass off the dizzy feelings disappear the kidneys are regulated so that backaches and painful muscles and joints are relieved The nerves are soothed so that sleep becomes sound and restful

At this season of the year the entire system should be given a house cleaning and countless thousands who have learned its value in seasons past will again turn to Dr Frenchs Nu Erb as the ideal tonic and renovator

Insist on getting the genuine Dr Frenchs Nu Erb which is sold in Marion only at Stump & Sons Pharmacy 141 South Main street The Nu Erb man now located there will gladly tell you more facts about this remarkable medicine Trial Bottle Given Free—Adv

MARION STAYS OUT OF DEBATE TOURNEY

Galion, LaRue and Delaware Listed in State School Competition

Although schools from several towns near Marion have entered the state interscholastic debating tournament, Harding high school did not accept the invitation tendered by the Ohio State High School Debating league according to announcement made today by K H Marshall, principal of the school

Mr Marshall said that the debate work in the league starts so early that it is impossible for the student debaters here to participate He believes that the team can do better work by arranging selected debates

In the league he explained schools have no choice of opponents It is his opinion and that of the local debate coach Thomas D Brin that better debate work can be done by refusing the invitation of the league

51 School Entered

Fifty one Ohio high schools having membership in the league will take part in the first debate of the elimination series leading to the state title Friday Feb 1 It was announced Saturday by J Glenn Ross manager

Nearby teams taking part are as follows Linn Central at Sidney Kenton at Upper and Galion at Delaware

The second round of the tournament will be held Feb 15 The question open for debate this year is the same throughout the tournament

Resolved That the United States should cease to protect by force of arms capital invested in foreign lands except after formal declaration of war This question has also been selected by Harding High school for debate this year

The championship debate for the state title between the last two surviving teams will be held in Columbus in the spring

LOCAL HATCHERY TO HAVE SHOW EXHIBIT

Ohls Lists 55 Entries at Pittsburgh; Record Chick Season Expected

The Ohls Hatchery located on the Marion Upper Sandusky pike will have about 55 entries in the annual Pittsburgh poultry show which will start next Monday and continue throughout the week

Harry Ohls, head of the hatchery will take 50 white Leghorns 25 barred rocks and a number of baby chicks to the exhibit Mr Ohls plans to remain in Pittsburgh for the entire show

The Ohls hatchery started shipping baby chicks on Dec 26 with about 12,000 going to the eastern markets each week. Shortly after the first of the year the number was increased to 20,000 weekly and during March, April and May the business will reach its peak when nearly 70,000 chicks will be shipped to the east After May the number will decrease until the close of the season around August

The Ohls company does no wholesale business in the chick line, all of its products going direct to the eastern farmer

This years business is expected to show an increase over last year when over 840,000 baby chicks were sent to the east At the present time more than 200,000 orders are waiting to be filled at the hatchery According to Mr Ohls this is more than twice the number of orders that the local plant had received last year at this time

The Hatchery has distributed 10,000 catalogs so far this year describing the different kinds of poultry that the company hatches

Goes to California To Escape Lightning, but Bolt Follows Him

SANTA MONICA Cal Jan 21—John Kulak one time resident of Minnesota today was trying to take solace in the theory that lightning never strikes twice in the same place and also wondering whether Lady Luck was going to be as vindicative in the future as she has been in the past

To Mr Kulak lightning is as welcome as a hair in the soup He asserted that he left Minnesota because always feared that a vagrant bolt of lightning would sit on his lap

Yesterday he and his wife were enjoying a radio program when a bolt of lightning entered the room via the radio aerial They were stunned by the shock the radio was wrecked windows were blown out of the house and one of their pet canaries was also catapulted outside

And this is now the first ill fortune with which Mr Kulak has met since leaving Minnesota

Recently he built a nice home here He had to move it when it was discovered that it occupied part of a lot belonging to someone else Later he fell down and broke a leg

Mr Kulak said today he was ready to go on record that life was not all beer and skittles and cocked a skeptical eye when he was told that lightning in southern California was to be unusual

Radnor Farmers Suffer Losses When Miniature Cyclone Hits District

MARYSVILLE, Jan. 21—The miniature cyclone which swept through sections of Union county and vicinity Friday night was responsible for the death of one cow and the serious injury of another belonging to Reuben Broyn, near Unionville. Several yards of fence were blown down on the farm letting the two animals out of the pasture and onto the railroad track where they were struck by a train. Two small buildings were torn from their foundations and a portion of the roof was blown from the barn at the Broyn farm.

The home of LeRoy Grubbs, of this place was damaged when an aged and partly decayed maple tree, was blown onto the building, mashing the east side and porch. The loss is covered by insurance.

Damage at Radnor

Telephone wires were out of commission for several hours Saturday at Radnor when several poles were carried into neighboring fields and letting standing upside down by the wind Friday night. The threshing outfit belonging to W. J. Miller, east of Radnor, and the barn and adjoining shed were demolished in the storm. Windows also were blown out of the house at the Miller home.

A chicken house, containing a large number of chickens was picked up by the wind and carried to an adjoining field at the Ed. Irwin home, south of Radnor, and roofs were blown off and other damage done at the homes of Merald Watkins, George Biggerstaff, Albert Jones, Arch Morris and Charles Elliott. Barns were demolished at the Yoats and Samuel McKee homes south of Radnor.

Fifty student members of basketball teams and faculty members of the Holmes-Liberty centralized school Crawford county, escaped serious injury when two huge school buses taking them to New Washington, where a basketball game between the two teams was scheduled, were blown over by a terrific gust of wind during the heavy rain, wind and electrical storm.

J. G. WISTERMAN IS NEAR DEATH

In Semi-Conscious Condition at Columbus Hospital

AUTOS DEMOLISHED

Is on Way to Visit Mother When Accident Occurs

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—John G. Wisterman, 52, 645 Lincoln Way, Galion, is lying at the point of death in University hospital here today, suffering a fractured skull sustained in an auto crash yesterday afternoon.

Wisterman is still in a semi-conscious condition and is unable to state how the accident occurred. His auto, according to police, crashed head-on into a parked auto early Sunday morning, with such force that his auto and that of T. H. Rodebaugh, were virtually demolished. A water hydrant several yards from the point of impact was demolished.

To Visit Mother

It is reported that Wisterman, who conducts a dry goods store in Galion, left his store at closing time Saturday and came to Columbus, where he was to visit his mother at the home of Dr. John M. Wisterman. Shortly after crossing the Columbus corporate limit in North High st., the crash occurred.

Whether you frankly admit your blunder or not, people will want to go on talking to you about it.

You Are Safe when you take FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE for COLDS

Be careful what you take for a cold. Remember that Father John's Medicine is absolutely free from dangerous drugs, and has had more than seventy years' success for colds and throat troubles.—Adv.

The Policy of This Profession

THE mortician of today possesses a far higher degree of capability than the funeral director of earlier years. A high standard of requirements governs the profession today; which in turn attracts a high standard of men and women to the profession. Our funeral service adheres severely close to every ethic, as well as being thoroughly competent in every detail; and is that of fulfilling a mission, rather than seeking only gain.

McCormick Deering Farmall
"The All Purpose Farm Tractor"

The Farmall is a triple-power tractor, supplying power on the belt, drawbar, and power take-off. There is work for the Farmall every season, month, and day of the year. Its design, including the clearance of 30 inches, and short turning radius of 8 feet, enables the operator to farm all fields without wasteful "turning area."

The Farmall, through successful motorization of all farm jobs, has been styled the all-purpose, all-year, all-crop tractor. It supplies economical power for seed-bed preparation, planting and cultivating of corn, cotton, and other row crops and for the harvesting of all crops including hay.

INDUSTRIAL LOOP PLAYS WEDNESDAY

HARDING WILL PLAY DELAWARE AFTER 2 WEEKS ON ROAD

Two Church Leagues To Open Week with Games Tuesday

BY KARL R McELROY
Sports Editor The Star

QUINTETS of the Marion county Sunday School leagues will open this week a basketball program contests of the Industrial loop having been advanced to Wednesday

Three nights of play are scheduled this week With the two leagues furnishing action on Tuesday and Wednesday Harding will close the week playing Delaware here Friday night

Six games are slated on the Y M C A courts Tuesday night In the Intermediate Sunday School league Christians and Trinity Baptists will start it off at 7 o'clock followed by the Epworth Presbyterian frays at 7 45 Calvary and Greenwood are slated to tangle at 8 05 o'clock

SENIOR GAMES

IN the senior loop the league leading Christian aggregation takes on Trinity Baptists in the opener at 8 o'clock Waldo and Epworth line up at 8 15 o'clock in the Intersectional battle and Calvary and United Brethren mix it in the closing contest

The Industrial league schedule will be featured by the clash between the Bohannan Excavators and Osgood Osgood is in first place going through the opening games without a defeat The Excavators are expecting to turn the tables Wednesday night The contest is the second of three booked in the league

The C D & M Kuppa meeting with the Steam Shovel in the opening game is expected to cause no little amount of excitement in the opening fray at 7 30 o'clock The Electrics are favored to win but the Shovel five may pull a surprise Not much can be said of the College-Millerite clash with the Lower Hocking

HARDING AT HOME

HARDING high cagers will take a rest after two tough N C O league games by playing Delaware in Star auditorium Friday night Coach Compton will resume practice tonight by sending his Red and Black basketeers through a hard workout

In two league starts Harding has managed to break even The team defeated Mansfield in the opener and last week lost to Bucyrus in a hectic encounter on the Crawford county court

After resting up this week the locals will resume the league grind playing three teams in a row The hardest quintets have been disposed of and Galion, Ashland and Shelby remain to be played in that order Galion and Ashland will play here while the locals will journey to Shelby to wind up league play

Michigan, Wisconsin and Purdue Are Challengers

CHICAGO Jan 21 — With one third of the playing schedule consummated and the race shaping up for the turn between semesters three teams today stood out as principal challengers for this years Big Ten basketball title

Purdue Michigan and Wisconsin The Boilermakers rate a slight edge over Michigan because while neither team has been defeated Purdue has five games to her credit and Michigan only four Wisconsin has won four and lost one

Incidentally the Boilermakers face probably their severest test of the season at home tonight when they take on the fast stepping Badgers Wisconsin fan followers hope will have just enough to check the fiery pace of the Purdue sharpshooters The latter in five games have run up the amazing total of 210 points

The Boilermakers chalked up their fifth successive win Saturday night in the annual stag cage feud with Indiana The score was 29 to 21 Other results Saturday were

Northwestern 28 Iowa 27
Illinois 22 Chicago 19
Wisconsin 19 Minnesota 17

Michigan and Ohio State were not scheduled

Iowa and Ohio State each with two victories and two defeats are still conceded a fighting chance for the title but the other five teams—Northwestern Illinois Indiana Chicago and Minnesota are pretty well untied out

The only other Big Ten clash scheduled for tonight brings together Indiana and Minnesota at Bloomington On Saturday one more game will be played—Iowa at Chicago

BABE RUTH EXPECTS TO QUIT BALL WITH MILLION DOLLARS

Slugger Lays Away Salary from Yanks Each Season

BY DAVIS J WALSH

NEW YORK Jan 21—Babe Ruth once the big clay pigeon man for the great American sharpshooter is such a sap with his money nowadays that, if he survives another five years of real stardom, he will quit baseball with a million dollars It was declared today by the boy friends intimates The latter also stood as authority for a statement that Ruth hasn't spent a dollar of the $70 000 baseball salary for the two years the contract has run and that his bank account, tied up in a trust fund amounts to not less than $245 000 Before they got through they gave me the unfortunate impression that the young man has been spending only a lot of his time

But it seemed that I was wrong again with my customary brilliance It was declared that he was paying $100 000 a year for the right to live and still had enough residue to send his $70 000 baseball salary along to the head keeper without a second look Baseball it appears has become only one source of revenue among many

The so called testimonial racket I am told pays almost as well and the hours are shorter Barnstorming pictures and vaudeville newspaper articles and Wall Street also have contributed with sufficient generosity to leave this gentleman clean, out an existence from a yearly income of about $200 000 according to my trusted advisors

Yes the young man has had his fling in the street and has made it pay him Maybe it hasn't paid much but if they have to pay at all down there you are a big winner

That stuff of course is hit or miss The rest of it is hit and score standing up There are no blanks for Ruth in the barnstorming thing He simply goes out there in uniform every day for 30 days after the close of the world series and they fix $1 000 on the line for him every 24 hours You don't miss that way because you can't

His newspaper income also is fixed and assured thus adding a probable $25 000 to the annual harvest Twenty weeks of vaudeville at the end of the 1927 season is said to have been worth $100 000 more and his picture venture in 1926 was good for plenty and I mean enough Add to this the income derived from that fact that he simply can't get along without a number of standard articles and one finds quite a lot of ways waiting at the pay off window

They weren't enough in the old days when Ruth left his money on the doorstep with the milk bottles Those days are no more He still has to be something of a chump with money in order to make the play look good but he isn't chump enough to blow everything with the finish of the good thing not far away In fact he isn't a chump at all and there is $215 000 saving as much as the customary rate of interest

Garden Corporation Will Stage Bout in Havana Feb. 18

Schmeling's Dreams of Gold in America Gone, Too - Many Managers

NEW YORK Jan 21—Madison Square Garden officials were endeavoring today to complete negotiations for a title encounter march, if staged may rival the Jack Sharkey Young Stribling bout as a de luxe spectacle of swat George Godfrey the 240-pound dark cloud of Leipersville Pa, has agreed to box any leading white heavyweight at Havana on Feb 18 just nine days before the Sharkey Stribling date

Paulino Uzcudun is sought as Godfrey's opponent but the Basque took a 10-round lacing from Big George in Los Angeles last year and is reported to be none too keen for a return match Knute Hansen the diving Dane and Tom Heeney are being considered as possible understudies for the Spaniard

John McEntee Bowman turf man hotel owner and boxing enthusiast has offered to promote the match

Bill ards is recommended by doctors as the best exercise after eating a Christmas dinner especially for people unaccustomed to the heavy fare provided on the festive occasion

ST. MARY'S BEATEN IN CLOSE CONTEST BY COLUMBUS FIVE

Sacred Heart Alumni Goes Hot in First Period To Win

ALTHOUGH the local St Mary's basketball team was able to defeat the Sacred Heart high school five with ease earlier this season the Irish were no match for the alumni of the Columbus school, taking an 18 to 14 defeat in a contest played yesterday on the Aquinas gym

The locals lost the game in the first quarter when the Sacred Heart team rolled up a 10 to 5 lead A second quarter rally tightened up the score with the Saints still on the small end of a 12 to 11 count. Columbus forged ahead in the last period never to be headed after battling to a 13 to 13 tie in the third frame

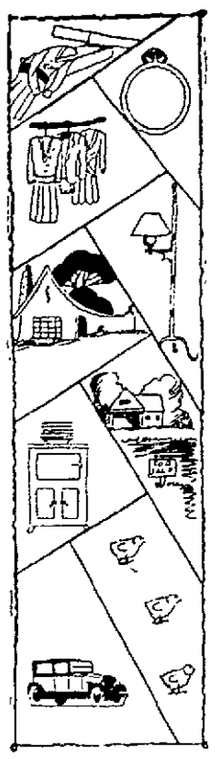
THE LITTLE THINGS OF LIFE



It is the little things of life, as you're often heard, that are tremendously important—and that fact holds true in advertising as well as in life. The small advertisements in this paper have messages for you that are just as important as the messages in the larger advertisements. Let them guide you to real merchandise values, real savings—don't make a habit of overlooking them just because they are small. Without the tiny detonator or fuse, the big guns that shoot a distance of miles become merely tons of useless steel.

When you pick up this Classified Advertising Section you can truthfully say here is a complete listing of the buying and selling news of a great community. News changes with each passing hour. All kinds of news-fascinating, strange, prophetic, real. It comes flashing to you, on the pages of this paper, from all parts of the world. Well, advertising is governed by the same general principles and answers your question as to "what news." You can depend upon advertising news. If you want something for the home, you will find it advertised in our Classified Section. If it is a dress, rings, clothing, bridge lamp, refrigerator or a house, you'll find it advertised here.

Advertisements supply the surest means of knowing what is NEWS in merchandise. Learn to read this Classified Section, TRUST these Ads and PROFIT by them.

Profit Taking In Early Session Sends Industrials Down

COPPERS AND FEW SPECIALTIES GO UP

$21,000 Shares Change Hands in First Hour of Trading

STEEL LOSES FOUR

Selling Orders Force American Can, Chrysler To Lower Mark

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—The bull market in industrial stocks received a severe jolt today when thousands of shares of the stocks which soared skyward last week were dumped on the market in a grand rush to "unload" by stock traders in all parts of the country. The bulls and bears rushed pell mell into a fierce struggle for the mastery of the big market, and for the best part of the day the bears seemed to have the upper hand

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—The first [illegible] of the new week found a [illegible] of profit taking selling orders [illegible], particularly in the [illegible] industrial stocks which led [illegible] last upward procession last [illegible]. Prices were irregular in the [illegible] though the copper stocks [illegible] a few of the specialties were [illegible] enough to continue the [illegible] advance into new high [illegible] levels.

U. S. Steel, which was [illegible] spectacular ground gainer [illegible] week started today a point low[illegible] and was battered down 4½ [illegible] to 181 in the first half-hour in [illegible] avalanche of speculative selling. [illegible] Can and Chrysler Motor, [illegible] the bullish strongholds, lost [illegible] points each as selling orders heaped in faster than they could be taken care of. The rise in St. Joe Lead and International Nickel was abruptly halted by a blockade of selling orders.

Anaconda Copper, Kennecott and American Smelting displayed a strong tone. Anaconda started the week 2½ points higher on a block of 25,000 shares, and was easily the most aggressive leader of the bullish forces. Kennecott topped 155 in a buoyant upward move and Greene Cananea was in demand at higher prices.

The market wires sizzled with a heavy turnover of 821,000 shares in the first half-hour, which was at the rate of more than 3,000,000 shares for the full session. The big board was swayed backward and forward by successive waves of buying and selling, in which the professionals and floor traders took a lively and active part.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—Grain prices the past week continued on the upturn which got underway the previous week. Corn still led the advance. Wheat received better support and more enthusiastic interest on the part of both the trade and outside interests than it has had for some time.

Corn prices worked steadily into new high ground without material set back until Saturday, when realizing and undoing of spreads weakened the market slightly. Continued dry weather in the Argentine was responsible for most of the bullish sentiment and a strong cash situation also helped. Dollar corn became a reality.

The relatively high price of corn, reports of large business between Canada and the Orient and a consistently firm market at Winnipeg created additional interest in the constructive side of wheat. A firm cash situation was also a factor in this grain and there were reports of crop damage.

Selling Absorbed

At the close of the week corn prices showed net advances for the period of 2 3-4@3 3-8c, with the May closing at $1.00 3-4. Wheat was up 2 1-8@2 7-8c, with the May at $1.24 7-8. Oats came out of the rut in which they have been holding and advanced sharply later in the period, finishing with gains of 1@ 2 3-8c. Rye was 1 1-8@1 1-4c up.

The best illustration of the strength in corn was the way the market absorbed enormous profit taking sales near the end of the week. When the May had definitely crossed the $1 mark, realizing sales appeared in volume, but still the market advanced and showed at least small net gains each day.

Expected reactions did not materialize. One of the principal reasons for this was the fact that some of the locals who were very bullish on the early part of the advance had sold out their lines in anticipation of a technical reaction. As this never developed, they were forced to reinstate on the minor reactions caused during some of the sessions by profit taking.

Corn Trade Active

With corn advancing faster than wheat, low grades of the latter in Europe were selling at a considerable discount under corn. This was some deterrent to purchasing of the yellow cereal, but was of some aid to constructive action in wheat.

While trade in wheat broadened at times, it was less active than corn. On the start of the upturn the previous week short covering and new buying was said to be based on prospect of farm relief. However, as a market factor the influence of that possibility seems overrated.

The most widely accepted view of the strength in wheat, and one which is borne out by figures and assertions of local professionals, is that for the time being the trade sees nothing in the short side of the market. Hence, the heavy short covering.

Within the two past weeks, with consistently advancing prices, the open interest in wheat has declined some 17,000,000 bu., indicative of the withdrawing short interest. The total open interest at the close of trading Friday was only 112,767,000.

Bulls Confident

With this present technical position of the market, it appears in a position to respond rapidly to any news of consequence. Bulls are confident that all the bearishness of this season's crops is discounted and vent so far as to forecast $1.50 wheat. However, shorts, though they had covered, are still skeptical of the constructive side of the market for a while, because of the large stocks of wheat and because this is the calendar period to sell wheat.

Any evidence of the latter interests taking the bull side of the market in an active way would be decidedly bullish.

The logical incentive within the coming months for advancing wheat prices would be crop damage. While there have been come reports of damage the past two weeks by freezing and thawing it is, at present, too early to excite much interest on that score.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Another week started today with prices of fruits, meats and vegetables riding at an even keel in Marion's various market places.

While many new shipments of vegetables arrived for sale this morning, retail merchants stated that prices had not altered one way or the other. The same held true for prices in the meat department of these stores.

Butter and eggs started their fifth straight week at the same quotations, the former selling at 54 cents a pound and the latter at 40 to 45 cents per dozen.

With JACK or JILL

BY JACK

"The Flying Fleet," with Ramon Novarro, Ralph Graves and Anita Page; vaudeville, at the Palace through Wednesday.

"THE FLYING FLEET" is an unusual picture.

It is more of an educational picture than the usual screen romance. And, because it does not try to be come involved in the projecting of life in the aviation division of the U. S. Navy, it is interesting.

* * *

"The Flying Fleet" begins its story in Annapolis where six young buddies are preparing for graduation and fostering an ambition to win their wings in the aviation service. Two of them succeed

Their steps from the naval academy to actual service are traced in sequence. The punch of the picture is at the end when a transpacific flight to Honolulu ends in the mean. There is a plane rescue to wind things up nicely.

The love interest is but minor, added as one might add salt and pepper to give the dish flavor.

* * *

EVERYONE is interested in airplanes, and for that reason "The Flying Fleet" is interesting. Scores of planes, it seems, are used to give the cinema audience thrills. Huge fleets of ships fly in formation and other craft go through all kinds of maneuvering even to "dog fight."

As we said above the plot is negligible.

Ramon Novarro is featured in the billing, but the planes really are the stars.

* * *

IN the vaudeville sector of the program there also is something unusual. The usual procedure for announcing numbers is a loud, bold statement that "Ladies and Gentlemen, we will now present——" and so forth and so on.

But, two acts on this bill do a different kind of announcing. Sort of backward, informal, seemingly ill-organized. And one likes it. Jay Velie does that sort of thing in his singing act and a personable young woman does it in the Homer Lind Revue.

Jay Velie has one of those musical comedy voices and he sings four or five numbers in such fashion that you want to hear more. We liked "Ready for the River," his featured number, best, of course.

The Homer Lind Revue is a musical travelog, dainty, refined and one might say peaceful. A harp and two violins—what better musical combination? And a young woman dances an Indian love dance and Pavlowa's "The Dying Swan."

Wheeler and Wheeler have a skating act.

BY JILL

"THE SHOWDOWN," with George Bancroft, Evelyn Brent and Neil Hamilton through Tuesday at the Marion

SOME splendid acting is done by George Bancroft and an excellent supporting cast in this picture which is a story of white men's search for wealth in the tropics. Romance, toil in the oil fields, and the limited diversions offered in the semi-jungles combine in an entertaining story with plenty of action and the continuity is good. A picture worth seeing.

* * *

EVELYN Brent, as the wife who is sure of herself, is easy to look at and plays her part unusually well. George Bancroft, as one of the lovers, is short on looks but long on personality, and is an excellent foil for the dapper husband and his weakling of a brother.

* * *

JACK DUFFEY pulls some clever ones in the comedy reel from throwing tear bombs to doing gymnastics on tall buildings and on top of machines.

Credit for inventing the Christmas card is given to J. C. Horsley, R. A. who designed the first card in 1846.

SHE'LL WED AGAIN

As soon as her divorce from Rudolph Cameron becomes effective in June, Anita Stewart (above), famous movie actress, will become the bride of George Peabody Converse, a New York banker. The announcement was made in San Francisco by Miss Stewart.
